Live oak trees to be preserved

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The ancient live oak trees on the new United States Post Office site on US-90 will not be cut down for the construction.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Frankiewicz Jr. reported to the council Tuesday that final plans for the new post office would not require the removal of the live oak trees.

The postal authorities, particularly from the Bay St. Louis and Gulfport offices have been very cooperative in efforts to preserve the trees, Frankiewicz said.

The building will be located further off the highway than normally to prevent the necessity of cutting the trees, he said.

Also at the meeting, the council discussed a proposed ordinance to provide protection for all oak, cypress and magnolia trees in the city.

Frankiewicz told the council Alice Newkirk, a member of the Bay-Waveland Garden Club, had submitted a draft for a tree ordinance based on policies adopted by other south Mississippi cities.

According to the draft, the ordinance's purpose is to encourage the protection of the trees which aid in making Bay St. Louis a "more beautiful, healthier and safer place to live."

The council scheduled a public hearing on the tree ordinance for Tuesday, Aug. 5 at 7 p.m.

Frankiewicz said he intended to leave the ordinance in draft proposal until after the public hearing in order that the public would come forward with recommendations on what should be included.

The ordinance allows that all oak, magnolia and cypress trees with a diameter of eight inches when measured three feet above the ground and with an estimated age of 20 years should be protected.

However, Frankiewicz said protection of trees of eight inches in diameter as included in the draft will leave many trees unprotected that should be covered.

The draft also calls for the creation of a Tree Committee which shall direct, regulate and control the care and necessary removal of protected trees growing in the city.

It also prohibits the cutting or otherwise destruction of an tree on city property and requires a site plan identifying all protected trees for any tract of land to be submitted with the application for a building permit.

Violations of the ordinance shall be deemed a misdemeanor and can be punishable by a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500 per tree that has been unlawfully removed, damaged or destroyed.

A copy of the ordinance draft is available for review at city hall for anyone seeking further information.

Frankiewicz also reported to the council that the city-owned Webb Center on Third Street has been included on the National Historic Register.

However, he added that due to the deteriorated condition of the building, it was an actual liability to the city and recommended that the city should seek a buyer for the building.

Frankiewicz said the current tenants of the building which include the Community Action Agency and the Bay St. Louis Historical Society would be relocated to the Valena C. Jones Complex.

He also got approval from the council to rearrange the tenants currently at the VCJ Complex.

Frankiewicz told the council actual city agencies needed to be housed close together to allow for consolidation of services.

He emphasized that no tenant would be "kicked out" but that the offices may be rearranged to allow more effective use.

The council also authorized Frankiewicz to solicit a proposal for system design for line extensions, a new water well, additional loops in the system and any other improvements need in the system from Garner A. Russell and Associates of Gulfport.

Following the presentation of the system design, the firm will then be employed to prepare actual specifications and documents for improvement projects that can be covered in the city's immediate budget.

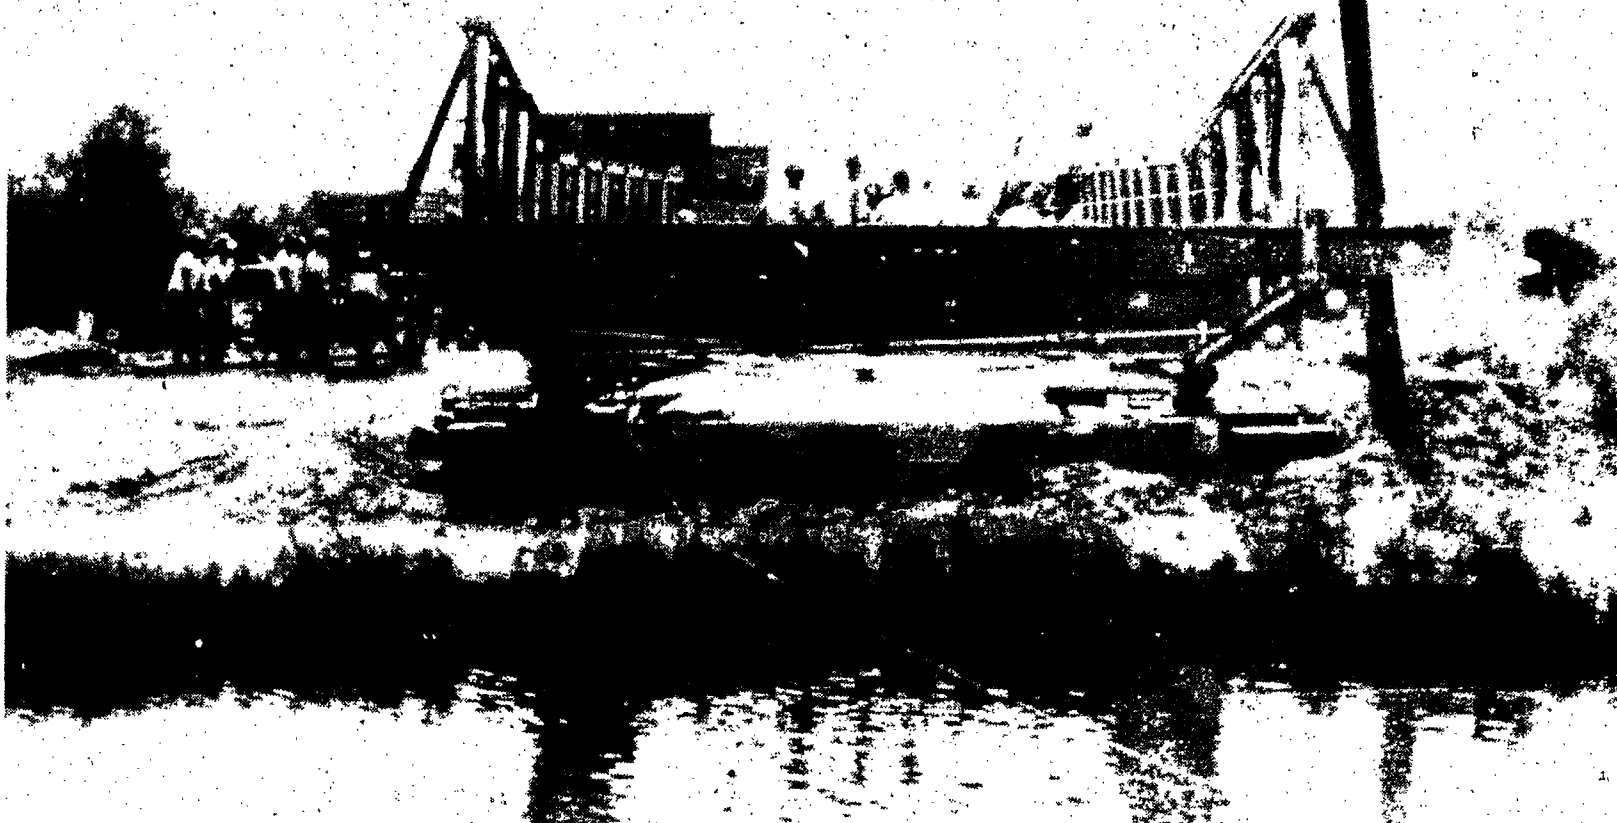

In other business the council:

—Voted to accept a 50 percent (of total taxes) payment from the Catholic Social Services apartment complex Notre Dame de la Mer in lieu of taxes.

—Agreed to support a countywide Muscular Dystrophy Telethon.

—Adopted a resolution in support of a medium security prison in Green County.

—Approved reappointments of George Proulx, Phyllis Genin, Neal Favre, J. L. Gonzales and Myron Labat to the Bay St. Louis Parks and Playgrounds Commission.

BaySide raccoon's plight shows jaw trap dangers

By DENA BISNETTE

A young raccoon that lost a leg to a steel jaw trap in BaySide Park may be returned to the wild after being cared for by a member of an organization that hopes to ban the traps.

If the animal can not forage for food without its left foreleg, which had to be amputated after being damaged by the trap, it will be put to work helping to rehabilitate other injured or orphaned raccoons, said Dianne Hunt, a biologist who is a member of Mississippians Against Steel Jaw Traps on the Gulf Coast.

Hunt said the raccoon, a female about four months old, is still very wild following amputation of the leg and two weeks of care.

"She will never be a pet. She is young but she has already learned wildness. It will be hard on her if she can't be rehabilitated," Hunt explained.

Loss of a front leg is particularly difficult for a raccoon, which uses its forepaws like hands to climb, feed itself and wash its food, she said.

Hunt said a small boy found the animal with its front leg caught in a steel jaw trap in BaySide Park subdivision in Hancock County, which was recently declared a bird and game sanctuary.

She explained that since the trapping season was over in February, the trap was either left set or was illegally set after the season.

"It was very rusty and could have just been forgotten, but if the area is a sanctuary it should never have been there at all," she said.

Mississippi law currently requires that traps be checked every 36 hours, but Hunt believes that law is unenforceable, which contributes to the danger caused by the traps.

Mississippians Against Steel Jaw Traps on the Gulf Coast, in conjunction with the Jackson-based Mississippi Houndsmen's Association, is trying to encourage legislation banning steel jaw traps.

"We are not against hunting and trapping, just this particular type of trap. There are a lot of more modern trapping methods available that are much less cruel," she explained.

"Hunters have been very supportive. They are extremely interested because many of them have lost their dogs to these traps."

The steel jaw traps, which may or may not have teeth and come in various sizes, clamp shut on an animal's leg.

Hunt said it is common for an animal to attempt to escape by pulling on the injured limb, stripping it down to tendons and bone. Others have chewed the limb off after being trapped for several days.

Because Hunt works with raccoons, she has seen a number of injured animals and dead animals found in the traps. Not all of them have been wild creatures.

She said many of the traps injure or kill stray domestic animals or pets. In addition, there have been documented cases of injury to children, although most of the traps are not large enough to injure an adult.

Her organization advocates the use of coated snares and live traps, which cost about the same as steel jaw traps and neither injure an animal nor damage the pelt. In addition, a live trap completely encloses the animal, preventing it from being torn apart by predators as animals in steel jaw traps sometimes are.

"Being caught in a steel jaw trap for 36 hours has been compared to having a hand or arm smashed in a car door, being unable to get free and being without food and water," she explained.

"Killing animals is one thing, but there is no reason to subject them to this agony with modern methods available," the biologist added.

Hunt said the Mississippi Legislature had worked on legislation to ban the traps this year, but the bill did not come up for a vote.

County school board meeting rescheduled for Thursday

A recessed meeting of the Hancock County School Board scheduled for Monday was postponed until 6:30 p.m. tonight, July 24.

Monday's meeting was cancelled when it was discovered a quorum of board members would not be able to attend.

Major planned agenda items for Monday's meeting included recommendations for administrators and personnel transfers.

Little League Award Banquet set Thursday

Bay St. Louis Little League's Awards Banquet is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. tonight at American Legion Hall on Green Meadow Road.

The affair is rescheduled from an earlier date due to participation in a district tournament by the league's 11- and 12-year-old All-Stars.

Earlier reports of the banquet postponement erroneously listed the event as rescheduled for Friday night.

Stolen property recovered

By DENA BISNETTE

Property stolen in a July 9 burglary in Shoreline Park has been found at an unoccupied residence.

According to Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Glen Strong, stereo equipment and a television set were found on the porch of a house at Highway 603 and Central Avenue.

The house has been unoccupied for some time, Strong added.

The owner of the stolen property has been identified but had not yet been notified Wednesday.

The investigator said the property was found after the sheriff's department received a telephone call from an unknown person.

No arrests have been made yet in connection with the burglary, Strong said.

INTERSTATE CLOSED—A section of Interstate 10 from the Diamondhead to DeLisle Exits was closed to all traffic from 3:30 a.m. Monday to 4 p.m. The closing was due to an 18-wheeler flipping over carrying seagoing containers of 55-gallon drums of Thiocyanic Acid. Hancock Deputy Sheriff Nathan Hoda directs traffic from I-10 to Hwy. 603 to bypass the accident. The east bound side was opened Monday afternoon to two-lane of traffic with the west bound lane being closed until Tuesday morning. The cargo was enroute from M&T Chemical Company of Mobile, Ala. by Sea Rail Industries to the Port of New Orleans for export. The cargo was removed from the site by pollution control experts. Mississippi State Troopers, Hancock County deputies, Firefighters, Diamondhead Security officers, pollution control experts, and a host of others participated in the accident's aftermath. ## Wilcox to chair railroad commission

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Hancock County resident Delmer Wilcox has been named chairman of the Rapid Rail Transit Commission for Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida and Alabama.

Commission plans for the coming year include the establishment of a regular train schedule from Jacksonville, Fla. to New Orleans, La., Wilcox said.

The special passenger train which ran through Hancock County to New Orleans for the World's Fair was a very successful trial run for Amtrack and the commission is working with Amtrack to put together a stronger rail service in its place, he said.

Other railroad passenger runs the commission hopes to establish include from Jackson to the Gulf Coast and a commuter line from the Coast to New Orleans.

Wilcox, a railroad commissioner for six years, received the appointment this week in a commission meeting in Biloxi. He succeeds New Orleans Mayor Sidney Barthelemy in this position.

Moran indicted for racketeering

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Agnes Moran, 72, of the Fenton community has been arrested and charged with three counts of racketeering in connection with the operation of gambling machines in Hancock County.

A grand jury indictment handed down last week listed the charges which followed a year-long investigation by the Bay St. Louis Police Department and other law enforcement agencies.

The charges stem from Jan. 24 raids at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3253 and Disabled American Veterans Post No. 50, both in Bay St. Louis and a June 19 raid of VFW Post No. 3808 on Old Bay Road. During these raids approximately 24 slot machines and $10,000 in cash were confiscated.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. commended the police department for their work on the case in a press conference Monday.

Frankiewicz emphasized, the police department was not out to get the local civic clubs but actually was after the "organized gamblers" using the civic clubs as a front for gambling operations.

"This was a very major operation, well-organized and run as a business," he continued.

Frankiewicz said the main concern was that the millions of dollars of profits from these activities would be used to fund other criminal activities.

He added that this concern outweighed the good in the community being done with civic clubs' profits.

Bay superintendent, business manager provide preview of '86-87 budget

BY DENA BISNETTE

About 25 people have been given a preview of the 1986-87 budget for the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District in the district's first public hearing before a budget has been finalized.

The Monday night hearing was called by Superintendent of Education Roger D. Oge, who has been in office for three weeks, and conducted by District Business Manager Garland Cuevas.

Oge said the hearing was not required by state law or district policy.

District records indicate that the hearing was the first of its kind for the Bay district, he said.

School board members did not participate. According to Board President Betty Diboll, Oge arranged the hearing himself without board input.

"He had telephoned me and told me he was planning to do this, and he said the board members did not need to come. Our work with the budget will be done on Thursday," Diboll said Monday before the hearing.

The board will meet at 7 p.m. tonight in the boardroom at Bay Senior High School to discuss and possibly take action on the proposed budget.

"We have not seen the proposed budget," Diboll said Monday, "but we know we will be held responsible for whatever budget we pass."

She said she had tried to obtain a copy of the proposed budget Friday and had been informed that the document was not yet ready.

"If we went to the hearing Monday, we would be totally unprepared to answer any questions from the public," she explained.

At Monday's hearing, Cuevas took the spectators step-by-step through the district's proposed 1986-87 budget, explaining that revenues are divided into district maintenance funds and various special funds.

He explained where the revenues are obtained and what use is made of each type.

"The budget is actually about 27 or 28 little budgets," Cuevas explained. Federal revenues, for example, are used for programs including free or reduced-cost lunches and remedial reading and mathematics classes.

State revenues include some transportation funding, some kindergarten funding and some of the funding for classes for handicapped or gifted children.

Both state and federal funds have been cut for the 1986-87 school year, resulting in some proposed cuts in specific areas. Federal funding, for example, is expected to decrease by about $25,000, Cuevas said.

The total proposed budget is about $5,752,441, which is about $596,567 higher than the amended budget for 1985-86, Cuevas said.

One area of the budget expected to change in the next week or two is the $215,713 cost for kindergarten.

According to Oge, several other parts of the budget are already fixed for 1986-87 and can not be changed.

These include contracted services, salaries, utility costs, insurance, supplies and special programs that are already underway.

The 25 spectators were allowed to ask questions during the presentation and most were for clarifications. Little opposition was expressed to the proposed budget.

There's luscious fresh corn aplenty hereabouts, despite the unbearable dry spell ravaging the farms and fields - that's evident from the many, many requests (via phone and in person) I've had since publication of last week's column on corn.

Corn pudding, corn fritters, corn pancakes, corn relish, corn this, corn that! How to fix it. A recipe most frequently requested was that for "Plantation Corn Pudding" - from my column a few seasons ago, also in my cookbook.

Several other readers wanted to know what and why and how to make "Corn Oysters." That's easy - when the cooks couldn't get oysters, they "made do" with corn - and made quite tasty corn oysters, sort of fritters.

So, until I run out of space today, let me try to answer at least one request.

The "Plantation Corn Pudding" recipe is, in truth, an old family recipe handed down through the generations, and dating back to ante-bellum plantation days in Louisiana - before the plantations were lost to the family! But the recipe has endured - and even now, I can enjoy that old family favorite in my "Woods Cottage" - and, let me say, I still test the "doneness" with an old silver knife! So, there!

Old family kitchen records enlighten us that this was a "must" when Southern Fried Chicken (what else?) was served; and, even today many Southerners consider it almost a desecration to serve fried chicken without fresh corn pudding.

So, without further embellishment of the family history, here's:

OLD SOUTH PLANTATION
CORN PUDDING
2 cups freshly-husked corn kernels

1 T flour, generous
Pepper, salt to your taste
1 T sugar
Dash grated nutmeg (merest dash, as it easily overpowers)
3 eggs
1 cup cream
3 T melted butter
Cut the kernels off the cob, making sure to scrape out the pulp with a knife, as this helps to thicken the pudding. Mix this with the flour, pepper and salt to your taste, add the sugar and dash of nutmeg.

Beat the eggs until lemon-colored, and add to the mixture, along with a cup of cream. Add the three tablespoons of melted butter, and pour into a greased baking dish. Set in a pan of warm water in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for a half hour or so, or until firm.

The old family recipe says "Until a silver knife comes out clean when inserted halfway between the center and the edge of the dish."

P.S. You may substitute a can of cream style corn for the fresh corn, but my forebears may haunt you!

Quotables by CUEVAS

It was a wonderful feeling for me on Saturday in seeing so many families involved in the Gulf Coast Sportsman's Club 3rd Annual Fishing Rodeo.

Many parents and grandparents said they were awakened by eager fishermen at five or six so they could get a good start on catching a 'big one.'

The important thing we feel is the fact, it was an event which has developed into a family affair.

In our younger days we can well remember our many fishing expeditions as a family like other families in our neighborhood.

Times have changed so much that there are only a few things which are now family events.

The smiles on the faces of the youngsters as they received a trophy or prize at the fishing rodeo in itself was worth viewing. I do have to admit a few appeared to be a little sleepy, as a matter of fact, several were asleep.

When an event has 383 youngsters registered in one day, that involves a lot of children and parents or grandparents.

We heard one grandfather say, "I did not do this much for my own children," in commenting about taking his grandson fishing all day long.

The Sportsman's Club should be commended on their efforts in conducting this fishing rodeo.

We do realize the club also received a lot of assistance from merchants and individuals in the community, and thanks to them, too.

In our day of a fast pace of life, there are far too few of family things to do.

As a community it is possible for us to look to other avenues where families could be involved in a project for a day.

We do not know the answers, but there may be others of you out there who do.

Many of us do not realize the amount of hazardous materials which travel through our county each day via rail and highway.

The accident on Interstate 10 on Monday morning involving thioglycolic acid could have been a more dangerous chemical.

We are fortunate there were reportedly no serious injuries.

Thousands of persons were late for work due to the accident which closed a section of the Interstate for about 12 hours.

The additional traffic on Highway 603 and US-90 also caused delays for some travelers using these highways.

Our many law enforcement officers should be commended on their efforts in the re-routing of traffic.

It was a very hot day, and we know they must have felt like they were cooked by the time the Interstate was re-opened.

We just hope we do not have another occurrence of such an accident.

Special precautions against burglars needed when entire family is away at a funeral

July 22, 1986
Dear Editor:

Our area is growing and changing, and the towns of Bay St. Louis and Waveland are not immune to burglars and thieves.

While attending my father-in-law's wake, two men backed a truck up to a very large, very expensive piece of equipment and hauled it away. My husband had flattened one of the tires on its trailer and had it chained to iron stairs. This, obviously, did not stop the thieves.

Many of our neighbors saw and heard the machine being hauled away. Perhaps, since it was dark, our neighbors thought my husband or a friend were driving the truck.

People are scared to get involved, and in a way I can understand this. However, the police said, "If only someone would have called us, we could have caught them."

I've heard that thieves actually read obituaries and take advantage of this emotional time of our lives when we lose a loved one and also take advantage of our forgotten homes and property.

I pray this letter will prevent this from happening to other survivors of loved ones who are paying their last respects to a friend or family member and, too, ask neighbors not to be afraid to call our police if they feel something just isn't right.

Sincerely,
Carol "Catie" Choira

Eyes on Mississippi

by Bill Minor

JACKSON—High school teachers taking part in the annual Robert A. Taft Seminar here last week seemed smitten with the idea that a two-party system in Mississippi will solve the state's political woes.

That's a nice squeaky clean idea from civics textbooks that political purists and some of us who write about Mississippi politics have been talking about for years.

I am less sure now than I used to be that a bonafide two-party system at the state level is really going to be the answer to a healthier political situation in Mississippi.

My doubt lies in how such a two-party system would evolve; and whether it would become a racially polarized system with all the whites in one party and all the blacks in the other.

Despite Mississippi's reputation of being a one-party Democratic state, realistically it has not been a Democratic state since 1948. Nor is it a Republican state, although it has mostly voted for Republican presidents the last 20 years.

White Mississippians are simply not party oriented, a legacy which comes from the Dixiecrat rebellion of 1948 when the leaders of the rebellion set out to destroy old Democratic loyalties to the "party of our fathers" and the image of Franklin D. Roosevelt rescuing the South from the clutches of the Great Depression.

The fact that the Democratic Party nationally was then beginning to turn its thrust toward political liberation of blacks and removal of racial barriers made it easy for Mississippi Democrats to say they were not leaving the party, that the party had left us.

In any case, there are very few Democratic loyalists left, loyal either to the national party or the state party, although there is now at last an organized movement in state Democratic circles to rebuild old Democratic party ties.

Still, you might say that the only organized political party in Mississippi is the Republican party. The Republicans have gone at it in a business-like way for the past 20 years or so, and they have developed a fund-raising and volunteer worker system which can effectively run campaigns for GOP candidates.

Democrats, however, can still validly claim in elections for state offices that while "the Republicans have the money, we have the votes."

While Republicans can win in elections for federal office in Mississippi and in certain local elections where they can concentrate their efforts (such as the election of State Sen. Buddy Bond to replace convicted Sen. Tommy Brooks) so far they have not made the breakthrough in state offices that the GOP has in every other southern state except Alabama.

Ever since Barry Goldwater received 87.2 percent of Mississippi's vote in 1964 against a sitting Democrat president, Lyndon Johnson, it has been possible Mississippi white Democrats might make a massive switch to the Republican Party. That hasn't happened yet but as long as Ronald Reagan is in the White House, a party realignment in which whites would flock to the Republican banner, leaving the Democratic Party almost a totally black party, is a realistic danger.

Some state GOP leaders have encouraged such a racial realignment by trading on Reagan's personal popularity rather than offering any progressive alternative programs to the state policies dominated by Democratic elected officials.

Actually, Republicans in the Legislature, for instance, have not distinguished themselves for supporting progressive programs. It will be recalled that the GOP lawmakers generally were not supportive of the Education Reform Act of 1982, and opposed the oil and gas severance tax hike which William Winter proposed to put into an educational trust fund.

Canton attorney Jim Herring, the former Democratic gubernatorial candidate who switched to the GOP in 1984, is now going around the state plugging for a two-party Legislature, which he contends can solve by the political system many of the ills which constitutional reformers hope to solve by a new constitution.

His theory is that a sizeable bloc of GOP legislators could help a governor break the legislative Old Guard's power in the Legislature. However, critics contend this is just so much political rhetoric since there's little likelihood any substantial number of Republican legislators will be elected in the foreseeable future.

The State GOP is no doubt disappointed that its overt efforts to convert incumbent Democratic legislators, when Vice-President George Bush appeared at a legislative reception early last spring, did not meet with any success.

State GOP chairman Ebbie Spivey is keenly aware that Mississippi Republicans must publicly stand for something in order to be an alternative to a state government run by Democrats.

She has created a committee headed by former State Sen. Charles Pickering of Laurel to draw up a state Republican platform. At least, the GOP may become the loyal opposition.

HYPERTHYROIDISM

Q: What is Hyperthyroidism?

A: When the thyroid gland - which is located at the base of the front of the neck - produces too many hormones, the condition is called hyperthyroidism. These hormones are called thyroxine, or T4, and triiodothyronine, or T3, and the condition is also called Graves' disease, named after Robert James Graves, an Irish physician who reported the disease in 1836.

Hyperthyroidism is caused by an overactive gland that may be larger than normal. In some cases, only one small portion of the thyroid gland may make too much thyroid hormone. Most of the time, it affects young women and causes an increase in the size of the thyroid gland. In older patients - also usually women - the thyroid gland may be enlarged and have a bumpy texture as a result of several thyroid nodules which secrete too much thyroid hormone. Why and how this condition usually affects older patients is not understood.

What are the symptoms of this condition?

1. Inability to tolerate warm temperatures.
2. Irritability.
3. Increased perspiration.
4. A fast heart rate.

The patient may develop palpitations. In older people particularly, the first sign may be an abnormal heart beat, even before thyroid disease is clinically evident.

Since thyroid hormone increases the metabolic rate, a patient whose thyroid is producing too much hormone may consume markedly increased amounts of food, yet experience weight loss.

5. Diarrhea or frequent bowel movements.

6. Eye changes.

The lids sometimes retract, causing the eyes to become more prominent. Sometimes the eye muscles become infiltrated with a chemical substance and cannot function normally, so that one or both eyes cannot move in all directions normally. The area behind the eyes may be taken up by the excess fat and other tissues which become swollen, and the eyes protrude. This condition is called Graves' ophthalmopathy.

Some of these eye changes may develop before a patient becomes chemically hyperthyroid, or years after the Graves' disease has been treated. Surgery may be required to relieve pressure on the optic nerve. Otherwise, the patient may risk blindness.

7. Goiter.

Sometimes hyperthyroidism, like hypothyroidism - an underactive thyroid gland - is associated with goiter, an enlargement of the thyroid gland.

8. Changes in menstrual pattern.

9. Inability to concentrate.

Unlike hypothyroidism, which is common in infants, hyperthyroidism is rare in young children. When a woman is hyperthyroid during pregnancy, however, her baby may receive an excessive amount of thyroid hormones along with his mother's antibodies. Thus, the baby may suffer temporarily from hyperthyroidism. Untreated, hyperthyroidism may lead to retarded growth and mental retardation in a baby.

There is no way to prevent thyroid malfunction, which affects more women than men, particularly women under age 35. And, approximately one to two percent of persons between the ages of 50 and 60 are affected by thyroid disease.

An overactive thyroid can be treated successfully in one of three ways:

1. A chemical, in the form of a pill, can be used to stop the thyroid from making hormones and to inhibit their release.

2. Radioactive iodine also is used to treat some cases of hyperthyroidism. However, it has two drawbacks: First, because of the potential bad effect of radioactive iodine on the ovaries it's not generally used on women of reproductive age. Also, the longer the patient is treated with radioactive iodine, the greater the chance of later developing hypothyroidism.

3. Finally, surgery on the thyroid may be indicated to correct hyperthyroidism.

Since the symptoms of hyperthyroidism may easily be confused with those of other diseases, a physician must be consulted for an accurate diagnosis of this condition.

Anderson to be honored with autograph party

Bookends Bookstore will sponsor an autograph party Saturday from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. for Leif Anderson of Ocean Springs, author and illustrator of the recently published "Dancing through Airth."

Anderson, daughter of artist Walter Anderson, is a dancer and has illustrated her book of poetry with ink drawings of dancers moving from page to page.

"Airth" is Anderson's word for her dancing technique, which she describes as being "based on the balancing forces of air and earth, breath and body."

"Airth is a way of experiencing oneness in nature through dance," she states in the book's introduction.

The book follows a dancer in her exploring the creation of movement as a means of communicating with nature.

Only 1000 copies of the book have been printed.

Bookends is located at 506B South Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis. The public is invited to attend the autograph party. Refreshments will be served.

Film financing seminar scheduled

Have you ever considered capitalizing on opportunities caused by the surge in filmmaking due to cable, pay television, satellite, and home video industries?

If your answer is yes, then plan to attend the upcoming seminar examining investment factors in the rapidly expanding film industry in the South.

The Mississippi Department of Economic Development Film Office, with cooperation from the University of Mississippi Center for Continuing Legal Education, is sponsoring a one-day seminar entitled "The Economics and Business of Motion Pictures" to be held at the Sheraton Regency in Jackson on Saturday, August 2 beginning at 8:30 a.m.

"This seminar will highlight the use and mechanics of forming limited partnerships for financing film production," according to MD-ED Film Office Director John Horhn.

"Security law aspects, business, and economic considerations of interest to attorneys and accountants, who represent investors, will also be discussed," continued Horhn.

The seminar will give investors clues to distinguish the glitz from the gold in film deals by using the fine print of the prospectus. Some of the pitfalls to be covered include exorbitant producers' fees, the producers' right to demand cash infusions from investors, and inflated revenue projections.

Major topics to be covered include: New Financing Structures in the Motion Picture Industry, The Economics of Production and Distribution, The Changing Motion Picture Marketplace, Risk and Reward in the Movie Business, Analyzing a Film Deal, and The South and the Future of Motion Pictures.

A professional panel will discuss the rewards and the risks of the motion picture business. The panel will be moderated by Dr. Sam Grogg, managing partner of FilmDallas Investment Fund I and former director of national education for the American Film Institute.

FilmDallas' investment portfolio includes "Choose Me," "Kiss of the Spider Woman," and "The Trip To Bountiful."

FilmDallas will also provide the panel of featured speakers. David Berson, director of business and legal affairs with New World Productions in Los Angeles, previously practiced entertainment law and was the director of video for Warner Communications Record Group.

Doug Curtis, an independent producer, has formed his own company, Oread Entertainment Group, which will begin production on its first project in September for New World Pictures.

Ernest Z. Frausto is audit and accounting manager of the entertainment division of Arthur Andersen & Company of Dallas.

James L. Stewart, president and CEO of Aurora Productions, Inc., co-founded the company in 1978 to finance motion picture development, as well as production and marketing programs.

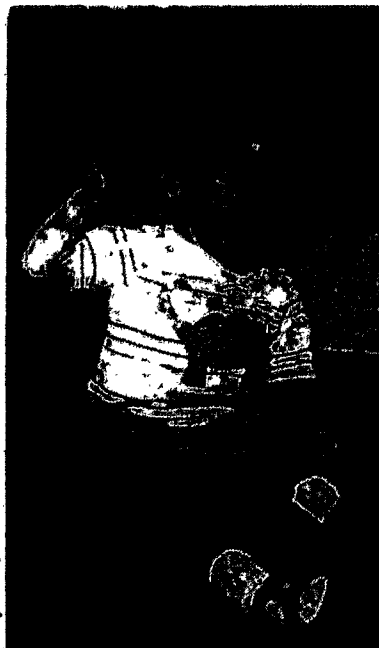

Melissa Ruman Stewart is an attorney with the Dallas office of Jones, Day, Reavis & Porgue, an international law firm with offices currently in ten cities.

Stewart's practice is generally concentrated in the areas of entertainment law and corporate finance. This seminar is designed for attorneys, accountants, financial consultants, and potential investors.

Approval for continuing legal education credit has been requested from the Mississippi Commission on Continuing Legal Education and is currently pending.

Seminar fees, including luncheon and seminar handbook, are $50 advanced registration or $75 at the door.

To register or for more information, contact the MD-ED Film Office at (601) 359-3449.

A "Pot of Gold"

Home equity credit can provide cash

MISSISSIPPI STATE—Mississippi home owners may be sitting on a "pot of gold" with the equity in their Mississippi residences.

Home owners who are at least 21 years old can access their home equity in a line of credit according to Bonita S. Bridges, an area consumer management specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. This line of credit is like a second mortgage with a different name.

"A home equity line of credit has a variable interest rate, secured by the consumer's residence," Mrs. Bridges said. "It is set up like a revolving line of credit. Credit lines range from a minimum of $5,000 to a maximum of $100,000."

Usually the credit line cannot exceed 75 to 80 percent of the home's appraised value minus the existing first mortgage.

Mississippi does not have a law restricting use of money secured by the home equity line of credit.

Home improvement, education, wedding and business starts are frequent reasons for credit line establishment. Credit lines are not designed solely for bill consolidation. Consolidation loans traditionally help only ten percent of the consumers who get such loans, and Mrs. Bridges cautioned consumers against using home equity for a consolidation loan.

With the help of the loan officer, a consumer should establish the appropriate line of credit at the time the account is opened. Future line increases require the same procedures, cost and credit analysis. In some cases increased credit lines are not permitted.

The initial draw, varying from $50 to $100 must meet the minimum required by the financial institution. The amount of minimum draw thereafter varies from $50 to $500. Minimum monthly payments vary from two to three percent of outstanding balance plus accrued interest or $75 - $150, whichever is greater. Interest is paid only on the portion used.

Mrs. Bridges cautioned home owners about relying too heavily on home equity. "Consumers should be careful about nibbling away at home equity for all loan needs," she said. "The credit line payment plus present house payment may increase housing costs beyond the individual's comfort zone."

The line repayment plus the monthly mortgage payment should not exceed 35 percent of the applicant's monthly net income. The total of all recurring monthly obligations should not exceed 45 percent of monthly net income.

Title insurance and appraisal fees are usually paid by the customer, but may be charged to his credit line.

If you decide to sell your home the home equity account must be paid off.

Home equity accounts have a maturity of seven to ten years. At maturity the account may be renewed or placed on a payout basis. Mississippi law dictates the closing of a zero balance home equity account. Mississippi law says if the mortgage is paid off the lien is automatically voided.

If the proposed tax bill passes eliminating the deduction of interest on a consumer purchase, the home equity line of credit may become a popular way to finance an auto since the interest on a home equity account would be deductible.

Consumer Update

By Janet K. Lukens
Coast Consumer
Management Center

Investment fraud has risen to epidemic proportions. An estimated $40 billion per year may be lost in phony investment schemes. Ponce schemes alone "which use new investors' money to pay off old investors" robbed Americans of $750 million from 1982 to 1985, according to North American Securities Administrators Association.

Who falls for them? People of all walks, ages, and educational levels. The elderly are prime targets and usually the most vulnerable. But bankers, celebrities, attorneys, physicians and teachers have been victims.

Here are a few rules for protecting yourself:

1. Don't fall for promises too good to be true. For earnings beyond 15 to 20 percent, risk is greatly increased.

2. Deal with established businesses.

3. Check the credentials. Ask a financial planner for certifications such as Certified Financial Planner, Chartered Financial Consultant, or Registered Financial Planner. Check with the Better Business Bureau or NASAA.

4. Don't act on hot tips, even from friends.

5. Don't invest in something you don't understand.

6. Start with a small investment, not your life savings.

7. If you have suspicions, pull out fast. Don't hesitate to demand your money or contact officials if you have difficulty getting it back.

On credit insurance...

Credit life and disability insurance can be a costly way to insure pay-off on a loan in case of your death or disability. Many creditors attempt to sell credit insurance for each individual loan. But you will be wisest to investigate all obligations through life insurance and disability insurance policies sold through your employer and/or insurance company. Several insurance policies can be a costly way of insuring yourself.

States regulate the maximum premiums for credit life insurance. The Mississippi ceiling went to 75 cents per $100 of coverage as of July 1. Prior to July 1 the maximum allowed was 90 cents per $100 of coverage.

Beware of a loan which includes credit life as part of the "package." Read the contract to know what costs are a part of the loan. Compare the costs of the creditor's insurance to the cost of adding to your present policy before paying too much.

For more information on credit life insurance, disability insurance, taking out a loan, or other consumer concerns, call the Coast Consumer Management Center at 388-4710. Or call your local county Extension office.

Smallest Crop In 12 Years

Lower state soybean acreages have little impact on prices

MISSISSIPPI STATE-- Even though Mississippi producers planted the smallest soybean crop in 12 years, the reduced acreage is expected to have little impact on soybean prices.

Soybean acreages in the state and nation are down this year, but the reductions are not enough to have a positive impact on prices, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Economics Department.

"The decline in acreage in Mississippi will have very little impact on prices," Williams said. "But, the national acreage is still large enough to put a downward pressure on soybean prices."

According to figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Mississippi farmers were expected to plant an estimated 2.6 million acres of soybeans, the smallest acreage since 1974 when 2.5 million acres were planted.

This year's acreage is 4 percent below the 2.7 million acres planted in 1985. The expected 2.5 million acres for harvest also is slightly below the 2.6 million acres in 1985.

Nationwide, soybean acreage is estimated at 61.8 million acres, 2 percent below the 63.1 million acres planted in 1985.

Williams estimates that to break even in soybean production, a producer needs to receive $6 per bushel with an average yield of 25 bushels per acre. The state's five-year yield average for soybeans is 23.4 bushels.

"With futures prices between $4.80 and $5.00 a bushel, we are at least a dollar away from the break even price right now," Williams said.

Williams added that adverse weather forecasts released in mid-July have pushed soybean prices up and prices will fluctuate between now and harvest time as weather affects the potential yield of crops.

Mississippi reached its peak soybean production level in 1979 when producers seeded 4.2 million acres of soybeans and prices were in the $6 range. Since then there has been a steady decline in acres.

"The state's soybean acreage is down basically because of low prices and low profit potential, said Dr. Wayne Jordan, head of the Extension Agronomy Department.

Consumers say they think about nutrition when they decide which food products to buy.

Food manufacturers are responding by giving more emphasis to nutrition in their marketing programs.

Amid all this concern for nutrition we find a lot of confusion and disagreement about what exactly food manufacturers can and can't say about the nutritional benefits of their products.

This growing controversy was the focus of attention at a recent conference called 'Health Claims for Foods: Current Policy Issues.' It was co-sponsored by Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, a consumer activist group and the Council for Responsible Nutrition, a trade association for manufacturers of nutritional food supplements.

No consensus emerged from the conference, nor is any consensus on this issue likely to emerge anytime soon. The parties involved see the problem in much different ways.

"There is a growing body of evidence linking diet and disease," said Dr. Sanford Miller, director of the Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). "Therefore nutrition information to the public is a critical public policy issue."

C. Lee Peeler, associate director of advertising practices at the Federal Trade Commission, said consumers are not able to judge the accuracy of nutrition claims.

"What we expect from industry is a focus on consumers' interests," he said. "We believe there is real value in truthful advertising."

Peeler pointed out that the FTC permits much more freedom in advertising than the FDA does in labeling. Standards for food ads are the same as standards for all ads. Deceptive claims, unsubstantiated claims, or unfair claims are not permitted.

Food manufacturers agree that consumers need accurate and honest nutrition information. The only problem, they say, is that government and consumer activists won't let them give out the information. That view was expressed by Edmund MacDonald, director of marketing services at Hoffmann-Laroche Inc.

"Anyone can make nutritional recommendations - anyone, that is, except food manufacturers," he said. "Only food manufacturers are so closely regulated. Other sources of nutrition information, no matter how irresponsible, are not regulated or even held accountable."

In the long run, MacDonald said, it's the consumers who suffer.

"People have the right to the best possible information and advertising can provide it," MacDonald said. "Are we serving consumers when we prevent them from getting the information they need in the name of consumer protection?"

R. Thomas Howell, vice president and general counsel for the Quaker Oats Co., agreed that advertising benefits consumers, but he suggested that the rights of manufacturers and advertisers also are important. As long as an ad is "not misleading" and is consistent with dietary guidelines, it should be permitted.

Views expressed by consumer activists indicate skepticism that industry can ever be trusted to make health claims without strict regulation or at least "guidance."

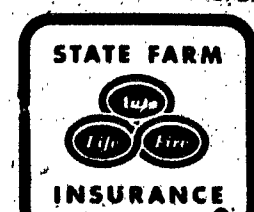

All agreed that advertising and health claims exert tremendous influence on consumer purchasing decisions, and that here are too many examples of misleading and deceptive ads to ever let up on the reins constraining industry.

Health benefit latest plus for state's catfish industry

By Ralph J. Ballew
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Recent studies indicate that the already profitable farm-raised catfish industry may have another strong plus in its favor.

In addition to being highly nutritious as well as tasty, farm-raised catfish may have an important health benefit, said Dr. Gladden Brooks, a food technologist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Catfish contain significant amounts of four Omega-3 fatty acids—the polyunsaturated fat credited with reducing the incidence of heart attacks," Brooks said.

Recent articles in the New England Journal of Medicine found reduced heart attacks in population studies of groups of Eskimo and Japanese fishermen who consumed large amounts of fish containing the Omega-3 fatty acids.

The reported health benefits are the newest attraction to one of Mississippi's most rapidly growing industries. More than 75,000 acres of farm-raised catfish are in production in the state with a 1985 farm value of $202 million.

The Omega-3 acids are credited with thinning the blood, lowering blood triglycerides and reducing blood cholesterol. Farm-raised catfish have medium to medium-high levels of these acids, or up to 1.7 grams of oil per 100 grams of catfish.

Only recently have two Omega-3 fatty acids (eicosapentaenoic and docosahexaenoic) been included in studies of the fat content of farm-raised catfish. The other two major Omega-3 fatty acids are linolenic and eicosatrienoic.

All four acids are included by researchers who calculate Omega-3 acids in various marine species of fish such as salmon, mackerel, herring and whiting.

Brooks said marine oil from fish meal operations in the United States cannot be used for food, but such oil is being used by the European market for margarine manufacture after re-refining.

"The catfish industry could benefit substantially if regulations are changed to permit marine oil use for human consumption," Brooks said.

Because of the high concentration of the Omega-3 acids and the high-quality feed ingredients used in rations, catfish oil is unique among marine-type oils.

The European community has expressed an interest in buying farm-raised catfish oil. A group of European cardiac specialists recently requested information about catfish oil removed by rendering catfish by-products.

"There is some interest in using the oil to treat persons with high serum cholesterol," Brooks said.

Catfish oil is unique among marine-type oils, partly because high-quality feed ingredients such as corn, soy beans and fish protein are used in catfish rations.

State's pecan crop up despite '85 hurricane

MISSISSIPPI—PI State—The state's fall pecan crop is expected to be up slightly despite damage from Hurricane Elena early last fall.

Pecan production is expected to total about seven million pounds in 1986, up from six million last year, said Dr. Richard Mullenax, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Horticulture Department.

"Most of this production is from cultivated orchards," Mullenax said. "Mississippi has literally millions of native trees and it's next to impossible to determine the amount of value of these native nuts."

While Mississippi pecan production is expected to move up, production nationwide is estimated at about 65 million pounds below last year's crop. In the South, crops in Texas and Georgia have been especially affected by dry weather and insects.

The increase in production in Mississippi is anticipated despite the loss of many young orchards in south Mississippi from Hurricane Elena last fall.

"Some of these orchards won't be replaced," Mullenax said. "Many coastal growers are discouraged after losing crops and trees three times in the past 16 years to major hurricanes."

Mullenax said because of the hurricane problem in south Mississippi, pecan production has shifted to the Delta where new orchards are being established.

Growers are using drip irrigation to establish young crops, Mullenax said, and some are installing irrigation systems in older, established orchards.

"The Delta also has problems in growing pecans," Mullenax said. "In 1979 a severe ice storm devastated orchards and set back production for several years."

Mullenax also said the Extension Service is continuing to evaluate new pecan varieties and selected seedlings that might hold promise for Mississippi's growing conditions.

"These studies take several years since we are evaluating trees that take several years to reach their full potential," he said.

The horticulturist said it is important to evaluate trees at length on how well they resist pests such as diseases and insects.

"Pecan varieties have been released that produced good crops early, but when these varieties were introduced into our pecan-growing areas they had serious disease problems," Mullenax said.

Mississippi pecan growers produced several crops of more than 20 million pounds in the 1960s and 1970s, but weather and other problems have reduced production in recent years, Mullenax said.

Southern Company board to expand

At a meeting in Atlanta, stockholders of The Southern Company approved a change in the company's bylaws that will allow the board of directors to be expanded from 18 to as many as 21 members.

The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) is the parent firm of four electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power. The Southern Company's common stock is the most widely held electric utility stock in the nation and is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said that in the near future the nominating committee of the board will recommend candidates to fill the additional positions.

"When elected, the new directors will be appointed to a special litigation committee for the purpose of independently evaluating a lawsuit that has been filed against a number of current and previous directors of The Southern Company and Georgia Power."

The lawsuit — filed by an individual stockholder on April 30, 1986 — alleges that the directors "breached their duty of due care" and were

"negligent" in supervising construction of Plant Vogtle and the Rocky Mountain project.

Plant Vogtle is a two-unit nuclear facility that Georgia Power is building near Augusta under joint ownership agreements with cooperatives and municipalities in the state. The Rocky Mountain plant is a pumped storage hydroelectric project under construction near Rome.

The lawsuit seeks damages of not less than $800 million which, if awarded, would be payable by the directors to The Southern Company and Georgia Power.

The special litigation committee will advise the company on actions that it believes should be taken in regard to the lawsuit. And the findings of the committee will be made available to the court that has jurisdiction in the case.

Also, the directors of The Southern Company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 51 cents a share on the company's common stock, payable Sept. 6, 1986, to stockholders of record Aug. 4. This marks the 155th consecutive quarter — dating back to 1948 — that The Southern Company will pay a dividend to its common stockholders.

ETV Brief

CINDERELLA OPERA

"La Cenerentola," Rossini's operatic retelling of "Cinderella," will be presented on "Great Performances" at 9 p.m., Friday, July 25, on Mississippi ETV. It was first aired on "Great Performances" in February 1984.

The telecast, an expanded version of the famed LaScala Staging of the work, incorporates studio and location filming. It stars Frederica Von Stade as Cinderella and Italian tenor Francisco Araiza as the prince.

Unlike many other operatic versions of the Cinderella story, Rossini's is totally without supernatural elements. A man of the real world, Rossini had little use for pumpkin carriages, fairy godmothers and midnight transformations. He completed the score in 24 days, just in time for the opera's 1817 premiere.

Jean Pierre Ponnelle's lavish production has proven to be one of LaScala's most popular stagings since World War II.

Smallest Crop In 12 Years

Lower state soybean acreages have little impact on prices

MISSISSIPPI STATE-- Even though Mississippi producers planted the smallest soybean crop in 12 years, the reduced acreage is expected to have little impact on soybean prices.

Soybean acreages in the state and nation are down this year, but the reductions are not enough to have a positive impact on prices, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Economics Department.

"The decline in acreage in Mississippi will have very little impact on prices," Williams said. "But, the national acreage is still large enough to put a downward pressure on soybean prices."

According to figures released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Mississippi farmers were expected to plant an estimated 2.6 million acres of soybeans, the smallest acreage since 1974 when 2.5 million acres were planted.

This year's acreage is 4 percent below the 2.7 million acres planted in 1985. The expected 2.5 million acres for harvest also is slightly below the 2.6 million acres in 1985.

Nationwide, soybean acreage is estimated at 61.8 million acres, 2 percent below the 63.1 million acres planted in 1985.

Williams estimates that to break even in soybean production, a producer needs to receive $6 per bushel with an average yield of 25 bushels per acre. The state's five-year yield average for soybeans is 23.4 bushels.

"With futures prices between $4.80 and $5.00 a bushel, we are at least a dollar away from the break even price right now," Williams said.

Williams added that adverse weather forecasts released in mid-July have pushed soybean prices up and prices will fluctuate between now and harvest time as weather affects the potential yield of crops. Mississippi reached its peak soybean production level in 1979 when producers seeded 4.2 million acres of soybeans and prices were in the $6 range. Since then there has been a steady decline in acres.

The state's soybean acreage is down basically because of low prices and low profit potential, said Dr. Wayne Jordan, head of the Extension Agronomy Department.

"There is a surplus of soybeans, prices are down and farmers are in a squeeze," Jordan said. "The decline in soybean acreage is slowing, but I don't think we have bottomed out yet."

CINDERELLA OPERA

"La Cenerentola," Rossini's operatic retelling of "Cinderella," will be presented on "Great Performances" at 9 p.m., Friday, July 25, on Mississippi ETV. It was first aired on "Great Performances" in February 1984.

The telecast, an expanded version of the famed LaScala Staging of the work, incorporates studio and location filming. It stars Frederica Von Stade as Cinderella and Italian tenor Francisco Araza as the prince.

Unlike many other operatic versions of the Cinderella story, Rossini's is totally without supernatural elements. A man of the real world, Rossini had little use for pumpkin carriages, fairy godmothers and midnight transformations. He completed the score in 24 days, just in time for the opera's 1817 premiere.

Jean Pierre Ponnelle's lavish production has proven to be one of LaScala's most popular stagings since World War II.

7 million pounds in 1986

State's pecan crop up despite '85 hurricane

MISSISSIPPI—PI State—The state's fall pecan crop is expected to be up slightly despite damage from Hurricane Elena early last fall.

Pecan production is expected to total about seven million pounds in 1986, up from six million last year, said Dr. Richard Mullenax, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Horticulture Department.

"Most of this production is from cultivated orchards," Mullenax said. "Mississippi has literally millions of native trees and it's next to impossible to determine the amount of value of these native nuts."

While Mississippi pecan production is expected to move up, production nationwide is estimated at about 65 million pounds below last year's crop. In the South, crops in Texas and Georgia have been especially affected by dry weather and insects.

The increase in production in Mississippi is anticipated despite the loss of many young orchards in south Mississippi from Hurricane Elena last fall.

"Some of these orchards won't be replaced," Mullenax said. "Many coastal growers are discouraged after losing crops and trees three times in the past 16 years to major hurricanes."

Mullenax said because of the hurricane problem in south Mississippi, pecan production has shifted to the Delta where new orchards are being established.

Growers are using drip irrigation to establish young crops, Mullenax said, and some are installing irrigation systems in older, established orchards.

"The Delta also has problems in growing pecans," Mullenax said. "In 1979 a severe ice storm devastated orchards and set back production for several years."

Mullenax also said the Extension Service is continuing to evaluate new pecan varieties and selected seedlings that might hold promise for Mississippi's growing conditions.

"These studies take several years since we are evaluating trees that take several years to reach their full potential," he said.

The horticulturist said it is important to evaluate trees at length on how well they resist pests such as diseases and insects.

"Pecan varieties have been released that produced good crops early, but when these varieties were introduced into our pecan-growing areas they had serious disease problems," Mullenax said.

Mississippi pecan growers produced several crops of more than 20 million pounds in the 1960s and 1970s, but weather and other problems have reduced production in recent years, Mullenax said.

Southern Company board to expand

At a meeting in Atlanta, stockholders of The Southern Company approved a change in the company's bylaws that will allow the board of directors to be expanded from 18 to as many as 21 members.

The Southern Company (NYSE: SO) is the parent firm of four electric utilities: Alabama Power, Georgia Power, Gulf Power, and Mississippi Power. The Southern Company's common stock is the most widely held electric utility stock in the nation and is one of the 20 most widely held corporate stocks in America.

Southern Company President Edward L. Addison said that in the near future the nominating committee of the board will recommend candidates to fill the additional positions.

"When elected, the new directors will be appointed to a special litigation committee for the purpose of independently evaluating a lawsuit that has been filed against a number of current and previous directors of The Southern Company and Georgia Power."

The lawsuit — filed by an individual stockholder on April 30, 1986 — alleges that the directors "breached their duty of due care" and were

"negligent" in supervising construction of Plant Vogtle and the Rocky Mountain project.

Plant Vogtle is a two-unit nuclear facility that Georgia Power is building near Augusta under joint ownership agreements with cooperatives and municipalities in the state. The Rocky Mountain plant is a pumped storage hydroelectric project under construction near Rome.

The lawsuit seeks damages of not less than $200 million which, if awarded, would be payable by the directors to The Southern Company and Georgia Power.

The special litigation committee will advise the company on actions that it believes should be taken in regard to the lawsuit. And the findings of the committee will be made available to the court that has jurisdiction in the case.

Also, the directors of The Southern Company declared a regular quarterly dividend of 51 cents a share on the company's common stock, payable Sept. 6, 1986, to stockholders of record Aug. 4. This marks the 158th consecutive quarter — dating back to 1948 — that The Southern Company will pay a dividend to its common stockholders.

Chemical truck turns over, blocks I-10 for 12 hours

About eight miles of Interstate 10 near Diamondhead were blocked for 12 hours Monday as clean-up crews tried to remove a corrosive chemical spilled when an 18-wheeler flipped over at about 3:30 a.m.

The closed area was located between Highway 603 and DeLisle and was reopened at about 4 p.m.

No evacuation was ordered in connection with the accident.

State Trooper Houston Dorr III, who investigated the incident, said the truck was a Searail cab hauling a sea freight container from Mobile, Ala., to New Orleans, La.

The driver, Donnie Crosby of Mobile, told authorities he did not remember the accident, in which he received minor injuries to one arm.

The truck contained 63 drums of thioglycolic acid, which is a water-soluble acid used in hair permanents.

The acid reportedly gives off toxic fumes if burned.

State Bureau of Pollution Control personnel and I T Corporation, a Baton Rouge, La. firm specializing in hazardous waste clean-up, were on the scene Tuesday as the truck was righted. Damaged containers were emptied and the chemical removed from the highway.

Seabees provide bridge for Heron Bay residents

BY DENA BISNETTE

Residents of Heron Bay Subdivision in Ansley will be driving over a temporary bridge provided by U.S. Navy Mobile Construction Battalion 133 for the next three weeks.

The bridge was assembled Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday and will remain in Hancock County during the replacement of a drainage structure known as the Claiborne High Rise with a permanent bridge.

The 46 men who assembled the bridge were assigned the project as a training exercise, according to Lieutenant Darrell Setser, an engineer who was one of three supervisors for the project.

The structure is known as a Bailey Bridge and is made entirely of steel. Setser said the bridges can be put together in various sizes but the one at Heron Bay weighs about 40 tons when assembled.

The only equipment used for the project was a forklift to carry sections of the 100-foot bridge to the site. Once the 14-foot sections were moved to the right area by the forklift, eight men lifted and fastened each one into place by hand.

Their commander, Richard Brown, said his battalion has assisted with a number of projects for local governments but usually constructs its bridges over a dry creekbed on their training site in Gulfport.

"We don't actually get to construct these bridges over water in most of training exercises," Brown explained.

"Other than that, the only major difference we face here is that our preparation area is somewhat more constricted than at our training site."

Hancock County Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge decided to try to obtain the Bailey Bridge after finding several problems with his original plan, which called for providing a boat at the crossing during the five-day period between destruction of the Claiborne High Rise and completion of the new bridge.

First, he found that the 80 families in the subdivision would be completely cut off from the rest of Hancock County once the Claiborne High Rise, which consists of three large culverts, was destroyed and LaFrance Road, the only access road to the area, blocked by the gap.

After discussing the problem with Heron Bay property owners, he found that several residents suffer from medical conditions and could need emergency assistance at any time.

Another problem occurred when Jerry Scafidi of Gulf Construction, the contractor for the replacement job, told Courge he had discovered several large pieces of concrete in the bottom of the canal.

Scafidi, who came to the site Tuesday to watch the Seabees work, explained that breaking up or removing the concrete could extend the job to about three weeks.

Courge contacted the office of Congressman Trent Lott, whose field representative, Mercer Miller, contacted the Seabee base in Gulfport to obtain the Bailey Bridge.

Within one week, Miller had expedited permits for construction along a waterway from Bureau of Marine Resources and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, while Courge worked on obtaining easements from landowners whose property would be affected by the project.

Gulf Construction and county crews provided a short bypass off LaFrance Road and approaches for the bridge.

On Tuesday, the framework of the bridge was completed and the structure was pushed across the canal.

Wednesday's schedule included the removal of launching devices at each end of the structure, construction of ramps at each end and placement of wooden decking.

Among those watching the construction Tuesday was County Engineer Larry Seal, who said he was "extremely impressed."

"I've heard about these temporary bridges but I've never seen one. I'm always impressed when I see something done this quickly and efficiently," Seal said.

He termed the project "the best cooperative effort I have ever witnessed in Hancock County," particularly because it involved federal, state and county agencies, private business and private citizens.

"This is not only solving our problems now, but it will help us in the future," Courge said.

"The next time something like this temporary bridge is needed, we will know that help is available and how to go about obtaining it."

He said the temporary bridge is costing the county about $2,000, which was spent for the approaches and permitting fees.

Traffic on the temporary bridge will be limited to residents' vehicles, service vehicles like mail trucks and emergency vehicles.

The permits were obtained only a few days before assembly of the temporary structure was scheduled to begin. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

SBA hosting home-business workshop in Biloxi

The U. S. Small Business administration, along with other small business resource groups and veterans organizations, will sponsor a one-day workshop on starting a home-based business on August 2 at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Convention Center in Biloxi.

The goal of the workshop will be to provide "how to" information and counseling to those who operate or plan to operate a business out of their home. Military veterans are the target group for the workshop, although the attendance is not limited to any segment of the community.

Featured speakers will include Mark Henricks, president of the Atlanta-based Henricks Technologies, Inc. Henricks started the firm out of his home seven years ago. His international company has now evolved into a manufacturer

"There will also be an exhibit area for organizations that can provide assistance to the veteran and other small business persons," said Tom Traxler, Veterans Affairs Officer for the SBA District Office in Jackson, Mississippi.

Anyone interested in obtaining registration materials for the workshop should contact Dottie Overal at 863-4449 (Gulfport) or Tom Traxler at 965-4378 (Jackson).

Now, Congress has legislation pending on the steel jaw trap, which has already been banned or partially banned in 60 countries and eight states.

A number of Gulf Coast municipalities, including Waveland, either have passed ordinances against the traps or are considering ordinances.

Mississippians Against Steel Jaw Traps on the Gulf Coast is encouraging both members and concerned citizens to write to the two congressmen who chair the subcommittees handling the bills, Hunt said.

The addresses are Honorable Henry Waxman, chairman, Subcommittee on Health and the Environment, House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515 and Senator John Chafee, chairman, Subcommittee on Environmental Pollution, Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20510.

Hunt said letters to the two chairmen as well as local congressmen should be mailed during July and August in order to be effective.

Information on Hunt's organization and help for injured animals is available from Hunt at 452-2034 or Martha Chambers at 467-5825.

SPORTS from the Pressbox

When Jim McMahon arrived at the Chicago Bears training camp for the first day of practice with a can of Budweiser in his hand, coach Mike Ditka, I'm sure, had some idea of what he was in for.

When people look at McMahon, it is like seeing a painting of Abraham Lincoln giving the Gettysburg Address, speaking into a wireless microphone. Something is wrong with this picture. Quarterbacks are not supposed to be six feet tall with bad eyesight. They're not supposed to watch more cartoons than game films, and they definitely don't yell and throw things at their offensive linemen, let alone the coach. Oh yes, he even enjoys mooning helicopters.

I'm sure all of this has you confused and somewhat shocked, and if so, you are precisely where Jim McMahon wants you. The only thing he does better than confusing the public is confusing the opposition's defense.

Most people want to know whether his outrageous acts and comments are truly his own personality or whether he is just trying to pad the image.

McMahon does admit that he does certain things purely for the shock value, enjoying the reaction he gets from people. He also loves playing games with reporters. For example, if he said his diet consists exclusively of carrots, raw oats and alfalfa, the next day the whole country will be talking about Jim McMahon's Horse Diet.

Though he is a comedian off the field, on the field, he is all business. He will do anything it takes to win, evidenced by the fact that the Chicago Bears have won 27 of the last 31 games for which he has started, with the "coup de grace" coming in the form of the most lopsided Super Bowl victory in N.F.L. history.

McMahon may be outrageously confident and full of himself, but those are traits on which he has no monopoly. The Bears as a team were an extremely confident bunch of misfits, after all, they did record the Super Bowl Shuffle on November 22, two months before their Super Bowl dream was actually realized.

The question now is, "Can the Bears repeat as Super Bowl Champions?"

Youth soccer group hosting summer camp

Bay Area Youth Soccer is hosting a soccer day camp August 11-16.

Every day for three hours fully licensed coaches will run challenging training programs.

The camp program will focus on technique and play with the ball. Some functional and tactical training is possible. Each camper will receive a soccer ball and camp shirt.

The day camp program is open to boys and girls, ages 6 to 19. The camp will be held in the evenings from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m.

To insure arrival of equipment for the start of camp, early registration deadline is Monday, July 25.

Information and applications are available by calling Roselin Watson at 467-5643 or 467-1402.

Scott Favre, Dennis Rhodes expected at River fall workouts next week

POPLARVILLE...Pearl River College head football coach Mike Nelson said he is expecting at least 130 players to report for two-a-day fall workouts Thursday, August 7. Equipment will be issued from 5-6 p.m. with a general squad meeting set for 7 p.m. that night. Morning workouts begin Friday at 8 a.m. with the afternoon sessions set for 3 p.m.

Nelson and his assistants Herbert Morris and Bill Martin have only one starter returning on offense and five on defense. There are seven other sophomores who saw limited playing time in '85 and another eight senior college transfers.

Quarterback Scott Favre, who played at Hancock North Central and started most of the season last year, is returning along with linebackers Greg Amacker of Poplarville and Terry Dauphine of Cecelia, La.

Defensive tackles Marshall Roberts and Darrin Fisher of Covington, La. and defensive back Dennis Rhodes of Bay St. Louis are the returning defensive starters.

Nelson and his staff will have their hands full during the early going of practice as the squad will have to be cut to 55 for the season.

"We'll have eighty players not make the team," Nelson said.

SUMMER FISHING SECRETS

The longest challenge to a bass fisherman's patience are the two to four months of the summer period.

Summer challenges to the angler consist of an overabundance in the natural food chain and stable feeding patterns. Bass hold in whatever pattern they have established, be it around structure, in the deep, or along river channels. But a hard and fast rule no matter where they are is that there is heavy feeding toward dawn and dusk.

"The main thing in this part of the country is to look for a little deeper water, a little deeper structure," suggests Missouri-based Guido Hibdon of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "If you discover enough points, you'll find bass."

Some of Hibdon's favorite lures for this period include a great big worm with an 1/8-ounce slip sinker which he uses off drops in about 20-25 feet of water. In clear water he suggests using a Fast Gibson lure between 1/8-ounce up to 1/4-ounce. "That's a good little bait for everybody," Hibdon states. "It's an easy little bait to fish." On rivers, he might also use a crankbait. Hibdon also favors a Bobby Garland spotted jig; anywhere from a 3/8-ounce up and in clear sparkle, smoked sparkle, smoked with red flick to resemble a crawdad.

For nighttime anglers, Hibdon suggests using a single spoon spinnerbait, a 1/2-ounce with a #11 white frog chunk on it. On dark nights use a black single spin with a #5 blade and work it slow like you would a jib."

One thing to take seriously are the daily weather patterns. I touched upon weather patterns briefly a while back in my article "Variables of spawning and weather fronts." Bill Sparks, member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, found that "based on the full moon and the water temperature, bass are going to move up on a bank. We've also found, surprisingly, in the middle of the summertime those fish will also move back into the bedding during a full moon. The full moon, I think, triggers an instinct in warm water...not only will the male do it, but the female will also move up on the beds."

Jerry Rhyne, also a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, reminds us that in the hot summer months "when a cold front comes through, it starts to work in reverse and activates the fish. If you've had a two-week or month period of super hot weather and all at once a cold front passes through, and it drops to 80 degrees and you've got cloud cover, it activates the fish and it'll turn them on."

As a final reminder, it's best to fish during falling or stable barometric pressure. Rising barometric pressure means an oncoming front and fish tend to get "lockjaw" under high barometric pressure.

Have a question you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

K&PING FIT

Sweat is the way your body protects itself from overheating during a workout. On a hot day, you can lose two pounds or so of weight during your first hour of running. Some people are impressed with themselves by weighing before a workout, and then after a workout, and find they've already lost weight. This is simply water weight and it immediately comes back when you drink or eat anything.

But don't try to deprive yourself of liquids, thinking you will stave off the return of the water weight. As the body becomes dehydrated, the heart finds it more difficult to satisfy the demands of the muscles. Performance can be impaired by 15 percent or more.

Whenever you work out in warm weather, you need to replace the fluids lost through sweat. And the best replacement of all is plain, old cool water because it is absorbed more quickly than any athletic drink or carbonated beverage containing sugar, sodium, potassium, and other artificial ingredients. The higher the concentration of ingredients, the slower it takes the body to absorb it, therefore, it stays in your stomach rather than getting to your muscles where you need it most. Don't wait until you're thirsty. Drink small amounts (5 to 6 ounces) of cool water at 15-minute intervals during vigorous exercise and continue to drink water afterward.

Joggers, bikers, and marathoners may significantly improve their performance in hot weather by drinking one or two pints of cool water about ten minutes before training and another pint during the activity.

Narcotics News

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q. What should I, as a parent, do if I suspect my child is using crack? Are there any signs to look for?

(C.A. Crystal Springs, MS)

A. Warning signs associated with crack abuse are similar to those of any kind of drug abuse. Here is a list published in an issue of Good Housekeeping for signs to look for:

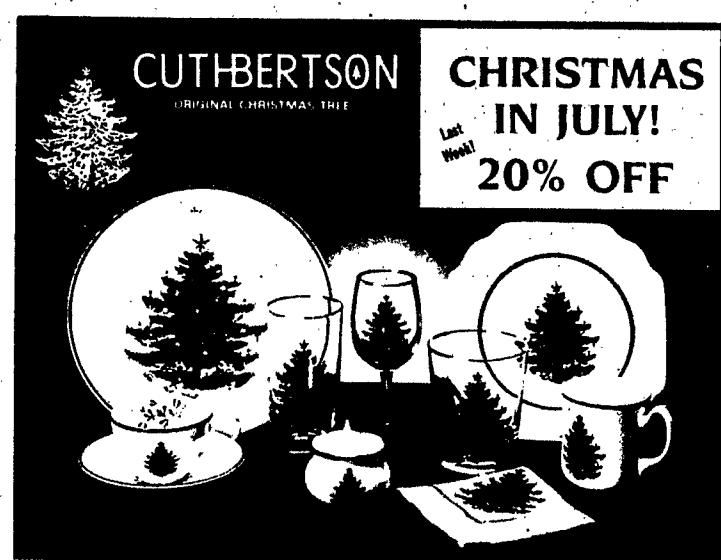

- Academic or behavioral problems in school
- Loss of interest in customary activities
- A new set of friends
- Erratic mood swings
- Memory problems
- Chronic coughing, often with black phlegm

What you should do as a parent if you find that your child is using crack, is to get him or her professional help.

Because crack is such an addictive drug, your child will need to get help from a drug treatment center. There is a 24-hour 1-800-COCAINE helpline available to help you find a treatment center in your area or you can call the Bureau's toll free number, 1-800-222-7646, and we will assist you in any way we can.

If you would like to ask a question, please address it to Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, P.O. Box 6462, Jackson, MS 39212.

Bureau of Marine Resources Newsletter

FISHERIES SYMPOSIUM

Dr. Richard L. Leard, director of the BMR, was invited to present a paper at the 11th Annual Marine Recreational Fisheries Symposium, presented by the National Coalition for Marine Conservation. The meeting was held recently in Tampa, FL.

Leard presented a paper entitled, "An Overview of the Major Fisheries."

LAW ENFORCEMENT

BMR law enforcement officers composed of 19 officers, 3 supervisors and a chief inspector during the first five months of this year have issued some 683 tickets or citations.

In May, 196 tickets or citations were issued by the three divisions of the BMR.

Other activities include search and rescues, response to requests for assistance from local law enforcement agencies; marine mammal and turtle protection.

CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS

The Coastal Program Division (CPD) is soliciting nominations from city, county and state entities for low-cost construction projects that will enhance shorefront access or coastal resources.

Funding is through the use of 306A Coastal Zone Management Funds and is supplemental to the 1985 funding cycle in which the following projects were funded.

—Popp's Ferry Boat Ramp (Biloxi)

—Gulf Park Pier (Jackson County)

—Courthouse Road Pier (Gulfport)

—Pearlington Boat Launch & Pier (Hancock County)

—Curtis Johnson Water Park (Hancock County)

Projects completed in 1984 include the Ocean Springs Inner Harbor Pier and the Pass Christian Beach Handicap Access Project.

Project nominations should be forwarded to Gary J. Cuevas of the CPD, P. O. Drawer 959, Long Beach, MS 39560.

WETLANDS ASSESSMENT

Earlier this month, an agreement was reached with the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory (GCRL) to perform a vegetational resurvey and quantitative assessment of coastal Mississippi marshes since enactment of the Mississippi Coastal Wetlands Protection Act of 1973.

The survey and assessment will be done by Dr. Lionel H. Eleuterius of the Botany Department of GCRL and will span an 18-month time period to encompass two growing seasons.

The survey will cover the entire Mississippi mainland coast including the southern most coastal mainland areas northward until marsh is replaced by swamp or upland vegetation.

It is anticipated that the results of this survey and assessment will enhance the state's management of all public trust wetlands through a greater knowledge of gains and losses of habitat throughout coastal Mississippi.

Funding for the study was included in BMR/DWC's grant from the Office of Ocean and Coastal Resource Management, NOAA.

For other information on the survey, contact Jerry Mitchell, Chief of BMR's Coastal Program Division, P. O. Drawer 959, Long Beach, MS 39560.

SAND BEACH MASTER PLAN

The final draft of the Harrison County Sand Beach Master Plan was unanimously approved by the Harrison County Executive Council while similar action was taken by the Hancock County Executive Committee at its June 6 meeting.

Both the Hancock and Harrison County Plans were funded through a grant from the Department of Wildlife Conservation, Bureau of Marine Resources.

The planning process took over one year to complete and involved the efforts of not only political and professional participants but also private citizens who sat on the Technical Advisory Councils in both counties.

These bodies provided constant public input into the beach planning process and also served as an advisory body to the mayors and supervisors who sat on the executive councils.

The final plan documents are complete and available to the public.

Any questions regarding the Sand Beach Master Plan should be addressed to Gordon Larson at 864-4602 or Jeff Taylor at 868-2311.

PROPOSALS FOR FUNDING

The Division of Saltwater Fisheries has submitted several new project proposals to be considered for funding under the Wallop/Breaux Sportsfish Restoration Act.

These projects include the construction of a boat ramp and ancillary pier facility off the Pearl River in Hancock County, the construction of a similar facility at Popp's Ferry in Harrison County, and the renovation of the Gulf Park

Pier in Jackson County.

Work is expected to begin on these projects by mid-summer. Funds from Coastal Zone Management (CZM) were approved earlier this year for funding of these same three projects.

SALTWATER CREEL SURVEY

A Mississippi Saltwater Creel Survey is also to be undertaken by Saltwater Fisheries Division biologists this year. The survey will be conducted by interviewing fishermen at randomly selected access sites along the coast and is designed to provide information that will help to more effectively manage the state's saltwater recreational fisheries.

RED DRUM PLAN

In cooperation with the other Gulf states, the Bureau of Marine Resources is providing $10,000 to the Gulf States Marine Fisheries Commission for the development of a red drum management plan for the Gulf of Mexico.

This plan should provide the information required for the effective management of this highly sought-after species and should help the Bureau to meet its legislative mandate in this regard.

RED DRUM STUDY

Further developments in red drum management include a massive state and federal research effort that is being planned for the coming fiscal year. The Division of Saltwater Fisheries in cooperation with the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory will conduct a mark/recapture study of red drum in contributing to this Gulf-wide project.

OYSTER REEFS

Bids have been received and a contract awarded to Pontchartrain Materials, Inc. of New Orleans to supply some 10,000 cubic yards of clamshell to serve as cultch material for state oyster reefs. The reef rehabilitation work is scheduled to begin early in July and will cost approximately $100,000.

NEW LANDINGS

As a result of a June state/federal cooperative fisheries statistics meeting held in Miami, the Division of Saltwater Fisheries has been slated to receive an IBM PC/AT to be used in the processing of commercial fisheries landings data. The new data processing equipment will enable Fisheries Division biologists to more effectively communicate with the National Marine Fisheries Service mainframe computer in Seattle.

BROWN SHRIMP LANDINGS

Preliminary landing figures indicate that the predominant size of brown shrimp landed in Mississippi ports were 36-40 to 41-50 count per pound. Overall catches were also reported to be good.

FISHERIES DIVISION

Fisheries Division biologists Tom Van Devender and Scott Gordon participated in the cooperative Southeast Area Monitoring and Assessment cruise.

The four-day monitoring effort involved trawl sampling stations in the Gulf of Mexico from Mississippi territorial waters southward to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Shrimp and bottomfish were the principal target species examined.

SEAMAP is a state/federal/university program for the collection, management and dissemination of fishery-independent data and information in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico.

FISH TAGGING

Saltwater Fisheries Division personnel engaged in a fish-tagging project involving the tagging of spotted seatrout in and around the Gulf Islands National Seashore.

Like other tagging studies, this work is expected to yield valuable information regarding the migratory patterns, growth rates and stock size of spotted seatrout populations.

Anyone catching tagged fish in state waters is asked to contact the Division of Saltwater Fisheries at 601/864-4602.

WETLANDS PERMIT

The Commission on Wildlife Conservation granted two permit extensions at their June meeting.

The Mississippi State Highway Department requested an extension of their permit to conduct activities in the wetlands in connection with the Highway 613 Bridge over the Escatawpa River.

Joe Hans requested an extension and modification of his permit to construct a barge unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

In other action, the commission granted the permit request by RGZ, Inc. who sought permission to construct a coal unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

HOMEPORT MEETINGS

Dr. Richard Leard along with staff members Joe Gill and Larry Lewis of the Wetlands Division and with Jerry Mitchell and Gary Cuevas of the Coastal Programs Division have been attending scoping meetings

regarding Navy Homeporting at Pascagoula.

The latest meetings have focused on siting requirements and dredged material disposal options. Decisions on homeporting options are expected in July.

BUMPER STICKERS

Wetlands bumper stickers which read "No Wetlands-No Seafood" are available at the Bureau of Marine Resource Office in Long Beach.

The bumper sticker was developed by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency and is intended to inform the public of the importance of coastal wetlands to the seafood industry. You may obtain a bumper sticker by calling the office at 864-4602.

WETLANDS DIVISION

Joe Gill, chief of the Wetlands Division, completed a 48 hour training course for state management personnel in Jackson.

The course concentrated on new management techniques and procedures for improving staff efficiency in daily activities.

OTHER NEWS

Although the shrimp season is progressing well, the trade deficit in shrimp is still rather astonishing.

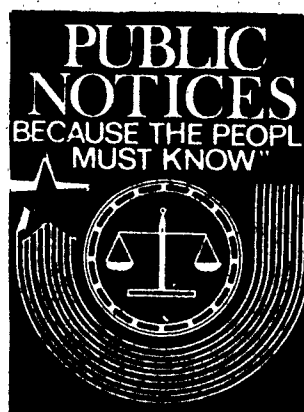

According to the "Shrimp Notes" newsletter, "the import figure thru April was 110.4 million pounds - only slightly below the 111.2 million brought into the US in the same period of '85."

Dr. Cornell Ladner, chief of BMR's Scientific-Statistical Division, believes that the volume of imports into the US strongly suggests that culture of shrimp, if economical, should be encouraged in the US to offset the deficit.

The trade deficit causes a negative flow of dollars from the US. According to Ladner, the imbalance points out that a large volume of shrimp could be produced under cultured conditions in the US.

Such production would complement, rather than compete, with the harvest of shrimp by fishermen from the Gulf of Mexico.

Also, it has been shown that the culture of shrimp in addition to increasing shrimp supplies, also importantly, has stimulated consumption.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS
Sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, for approximately 400 linear feet of wooden fence surrounding the City work yard. Specifications for same are available in the office of the City Clerk, located on the second floor of City Hall. Said bids will be delivered to the City Clerk's Office, located at City Hall, P.O. Box 310, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520, by 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 30, 1986. The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding process. Bids may be held by City for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days from date of receipt for reviewing of bids and investigation of qualifications of bidders.

OYSTER REEFS

Bids have been received and a contract awarded to Pontchartrain Materials, Inc. of New Orleans to supply some 10,000 cubic yards of clamshell to serve as cultch material for state oyster reefs. The reef rehabilitation work is scheduled to begin early in July and will cost approximately $100,000.

NEW LANDINGS

As a result of a June state/federal cooperative fisheries statistics meeting held in Miami, the Division of Saltwater Fisheries has been slated to receive an IBM PC/AT to be used in the processing of commercial fisheries landings data. The new data processing equipment will enable Fisheries Division biologists to more effectively communicate with the National Marine Fisheries Service mainframe computer in Seattle.

BROWN SHRIMP LANDINGS

Preliminary landing figures indicate that the predominant size of brown shrimp landed in Mississippi ports were 36-40 to 41-50 count per pound. Overall catches were also reported to be good.

FISHERIES DIVISION

Fisheries Division biologists Tom Van Devender and Scott Gordon participated in the cooperative Southeast Area Monitoring and Assessment cruise.

The four-day monitoring effort involved trawl sampling stations in the Gulf of Mexico from Mississippi territorial waters southward to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Shrimp and bottomfish were the principal target species examined.

SEAMAP is a state/federal/university program for the collection, management and dissemination of fishery-independent data and information in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico.

FISH TAGGING

Saltwater Fisheries Division personnel engaged in a fish-tagging project involving the tagging of spotted seatrout in and around the Gulf Islands National Seashore.

Like other tagging studies, this work is expected to yield valuable information regarding the migratory patterns, growth rates and stock size of spotted seatrout populations.

Anyone catching tagged fish in state waters is asked to contact the Division of Saltwater Fisheries at 601/864-4602.

WETLANDS PERMIT

The Commission on Wildlife Conservation granted two permit extensions at their June meeting.

The Mississippi State Highway Department requested an extension of their permit to conduct activities in the wetlands in connection with the Highway 613 Bridge over the Escatawpa River.

Joe Hans requested an extension and modification of his permit to construct a barge unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

In other action, the commission granted the permit request by RGZ, Inc. who sought permission to construct a coal unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

HOMEPORT MEETINGS

Dr. Richard Leard along with staff members Joe Gill and Larry Lewis of the Wetlands Division and with Jerry Mitchell and Gary Cuevas of the Coastal Programs Division have been attending scoping meetings

regarding Navy Homeporting at Pascagoula.

The latest meetings have focused on siting requirements and dredged material disposal options. Decisions on homeporting options are expected in July.

BUMPER STICKERS

Wetlands bumper stickers which read "No Wetlands-No Seafood" are available at the Bureau of Marine Resource Office in Long Beach.

The bumper sticker was developed by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency and is intended to inform the public of the importance of coastal wetlands to the seafood industry. You may obtain a bumper sticker by calling the office at 864-4602.

WETLANDS DIVISION

Joe Gill, chief of the Wetlands Division, completed a 48 hour training course for state management personnel in Jackson.

The course concentrated on new management techniques and procedures for improving staff efficiency in daily activities.

OTHER NEWS

Although the shrimp season is progressing well, the trade deficit in shrimp is still rather astonishing.

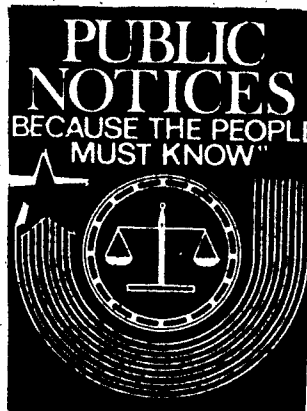

According to the "Shrimp Notes" newsletter, "the import figure thru April was 110.4 million pounds - only slightly below the 111.2 million brought into the US in the same period of '85."

Dr. Cornell Ladner, chief of BMR's Scientific-Statistical Division, believes that the volume of imports into the US strongly suggests that culture of shrimp, if economical, should be encouraged in the US to offset the deficit.

The trade deficit causes a negative flow of dollars from the US. According to Ladner, the imbalance points out that a large volume of shrimp could be produced under cultured conditions in the US.

Such production would complement, rather than compete, with the harvest of shrimp by fishermen from the Gulf of Mexico.

Also, it has been shown that the culture of shrimp in addition to increasing shrimp supplies, also importantly, has stimulated consumption.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, for approximately 400 linear feet of wooden fence surrounding the City work yard. Specifications for same are available in the office of the City Clerk, located on the second floor of City Hall, P.O. Box 310, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520, by 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 30, 1986. The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding process. Bids may be held by City for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days from date of receipt for reviewing of bids and investigation of qualifications of bidders.

TURN OFF I-10 EXIT 433 IN SLIDELL AT GARRETT DATSUN

SOUTHERN CARPET MILLS

OYSTER REEFS

Bids have been received and a contract awarded to Pontchartrain Materials, Inc. of New Orleans to supply some 10,000 cubic yards of clamshell to serve as cultch material for state oyster reefs. The reef rehabilitation work is scheduled to begin early in July and will cost approximately $100,000.

NEW LANDINGS

As a result of a June state/federal cooperative fisheries statistics meeting held in Miami, the Division of Saltwater Fisheries has been slated to receive an IBM PC/AT to be used in the processing of commercial fisheries landings data. The new data processing equipment will enable Fisheries Division biologists to more effectively communicate with the National Marine Fisheries Service mainframe computer in Seattle.

BROWN SHRIMP LANDINGS

Preliminary landing figures indicate that the predominant size of brown shrimp landed in Mississippi ports were 36-40 to 41-50 count per pound. Overall catches were also reported to be good.

FISHERIES DIVISION

Fisheries Division biologists Tom Van Devender and Scott Gordon participated in the cooperative Southeast Area Monitoring and Assessment cruise.

The four-day monitoring effort involved trawl sampling stations in the Gulf of Mexico from Mississippi territorial waters southward to the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Shrimp and bottomfish were the principal target species examined.

SEAMAP is a state/federal/university program for the collection, management and dissemination of fishery-independent data and information in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico.

FISH TAGGING

Saltwater Fisheries Division personnel engaged in a fish-tagging project involving the tagging of spotted seatrout in and around the Gulf Islands National Seashore.

Like other tagging studies, this work is expected to yield valuable information regarding the migratory patterns, growth rates and stock size of spotted seatrout populations.

Anyone catching tagged fish in state waters is asked to contact the Division of Saltwater Fisheries at 601/864-4602.

WETLANDS PERMIT

The Commission on Wildlife Conservation granted two permit extensions at their June meeting.

The Mississippi State Highway Department requested an extension of their permit to conduct activities in the wetlands in connection with the Highway 613 Bridge over the Escatawpa River.

Joe Hans requested an extension and modification of his permit to construct a barge unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

In other action, the commission granted the permit request by RGZ, Inc. who sought permission to construct a coal unloading facility on the Escatawpa River at Moss Point.

HOMEPORT MEETINGS

Dr. Richard Leard along with staff members Joe Gill and Larry Lewis of the Wetlands Division and with Jerry Mitchell and Gary Cuevas of the Coastal Programs Division have been attending scoping meetings

regarding Navy Homeporting at Pascagoula.

The latest meetings have focused on siting requirements and dredged material disposal options. Decisions on homeporting options are expected in July.

BUMPER STICKERS

Wetlands bumper stickers which read "No Wetlands-No Seafood" are available at the Bureau of Marine Resource Office in Long Beach.

The bumper sticker was developed by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency and is intended to inform the public of the importance of coastal wetlands to the seafood industry. You may obtain a bumper sticker by calling the office at 864-4602.

WETLANDS DIVISION

Joe Gill, chief of the Wetlands Division, completed a 48 hour training course for state management personnel in Jackson.

The course concentrated on new management techniques and procedures for improving staff efficiency in daily activities.

OTHER NEWS

Although the shrimp season is progressing well, the trade deficit in shrimp is still rather astonishing.

According to the "Shrimp Notes" newsletter, "the import figure thru April was 110.4 million pounds - only slightly below the 111.2 million brought into the US in the same period of '85."

Dr. Cornell Ladner, chief of BMR's Scientific-Statistical Division, believes that the volume of imports into the US strongly suggests that culture of shrimp, if economical, should be encouraged in the US to offset the deficit.

The trade deficit causes a negative flow of dollars from the US. According to Ladner, the imbalance points out that a large volume of shrimp could be produced under cultured conditions in the US. Such production would complement, rather than compete, with the harvest of shrimp by fishermen from the Gulf of Mexico.

Also, it has been shown that the culture of shrimp in addition to increasing shrimp supplies, also importantly, has stimulated consumption.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received by the City Council of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, for approximately 400 linear feet of wooden fence surrounding the City work yard. Specifications for same are available in the office of the City Clerk, located on the second floor of City Hall. Said bids will be delivered to the City Clerk's Office, second floor, City Hall, P.O. Box 310, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520, by 4:00 p.m. Wednesday, July 30, 1986.

The City reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding process. Bids may be held by City for a period not to exceed thirty (30) days from date of receipt for reviewing of bids and investigation of qualifications of bidders.

Carey student selected for Rotary fellowship

HATTIESBURG - Gary Roberson of Toomsba is William Carey's third consecutive recipient of the Rotary Fellowship International, a scholarship which allows for one year of study abroad. This scholarship pays for all tuition, housing, meals and travel expenses.

Carey's past winners include Randy Rawls, 1984 winner, who studied at Canterbury University in Christchurch, New Zealand and Danny Barber, 1985 winner, who is currently studying at Queensland University in Brisbane, Australia.

Roberson plans to study chemical education at the University of York in Yorkshire, England (about 200 miles north of London). Roberson chose England because of his interest in England's education system. "It intrigued me," Roberson said.

Another factor in Roberson's decision was the location. "The other two (Rawls and Barber) went to schools in the Southern Hemisphere. I wanted to go to school in the Northern Hemisphere so I wouldn't have to wait a semester before starting," explained Roberson.

Milton Wheeler, vice president for student development at Carey, submitted Roberson's name locally to the Petal Rotary chapter. The Petal chapter nominated Roberson to compete on the district level in New Orleans with other Mississippi and Louisiana candidates.

After some written assignments and a personal interview in November of 1985, Roberson was officially notified in February of his selection for the 1986 Rotary Fellowship Scholarship.

"It sounds simple, but it was hard," Roberson said. "Some letters had to be rewritten six or seven times before Dr. Wheeler would accept them."

River budget set at 6.2 million

POPLARVILLE...A $6.2 million budget for the 1986-87 academic year which began July 1 has been adopted by the Pearl River College Board of Trustees.

The total represents a $207,179 reduction over last year's revised budget. While state support is projected to decline by $278,349 some of the loss is offset by a $78,859 increase in revenue from student tuition and $15,000 increased support from five of the six counties included in the college district.

Students at Mississippi's pioneer junior college will take up some of the financial slack as a result of the reduced state funding. PRC's tuition was increased from $225 to $250 a semester, however, Pearl River students will still be paying the lowest tuition in the state.

Allocations for salaries are down about $300,000 as a result of reducing the work year of vocational-technical instructors from 12 to 11 months and by not filling already vacant staff positions.

But money earmarked for scholarships to attract students is up from $215,000 to $227,000 this year. Pearl River provides scholarships based on the American College Test scores and class rank for valedictorians and salutatorians. Band, cheerleader, journalism, String of Pearl and athletic scholarships are also provided.

The college district includes the main campus at Poplarville and vocational technical centers in Hancock, Forrest and Lamar Counties. Also, in the district are Jefferson Davis and Marion counties.

Support from tax millage in the six counties range from a low of $70,000 a year from Jefferson Davis to a high of $200,000 from Forrest County. Contributions from Hancock and Pearl River counties are budgeted at $135,000 and $165,000 for the coming academic year. Marion county is expected to contribute $150,000 and Lamar $120,000.

Of the new budget, 3.6 million dollars is allocated to salaries and $650,000 to faculty, staff fringe benefits.

Noto takes third annual language award

J'lene Renee Noto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Noto of Bay St. Louis and a recent graduate of Our Lady Academy, has received the 1986 award from the Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Scholarship Fund.

She will attend Louisiana State University in the fall and will continue her education in French.

During her high school years, Ms. Noto was an officer in the National Honor Society, a member of the French Honor Society, member of the drama, speech, and debating clubs and president of Our Lady of the Gulf CYO.

She attended Girls' State and was a student representative for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce. Her four-year grade-point average at OLA was 3.8.

Her grandfather, Roland Taillac of Bay St. Louis, was born in France, and her family maintains contact with French relatives through letters and visits.

The Emily de Montluzin Foreign Language Fund was established in 1963 and provides a $500 scholarship each year to a high school senior from an accredited school in Hancock County.

The student must have excelled for at least two years in a foreign language and intend to continue studies in it on college level.

The first recipient was Mary Langenbacker, a 1984 graduate of Bay High and a resident of Waveland, now attending the University of Mississippi. In 1985 the award went to Bay High graduate George Paul of Plamondhead, now a student at Mississippi State University.

The award fund is perpetuated by yearly donations from interested citizens and former students of Mrs. de Montluzin. Its purpose is to encourage further study by high school graduates who have shown outstanding aptitude in a second language.

USM English scholars to continue research

HATTIESBURG—Two English professors at the University of Southern Mississippi have been awarded grants totaling nearly $250,000 to continue research on the works of two literary giants.

Drs. Noel Polk and Gary Stringer have received separate grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) to continue to study the works of American writer William Faulkner and English poet and theologian John Donne.

Polk received a two-year $75,000 NEH grant to continue work on the Faulkner Concordance, a computerized, bound volume listing of all the works in the scope of Faulkner's writings.

Stringer was awarded a three-year NEH grant of $169,000 to support continuing work on the Donne Variorum, a compilation of Donne's poems and criticisms of his work.

Polk, textual editor of the Faulkner research since 1977, said his project eventually will process 19 novels, three volumes of short stories and one volume of poetry written by the Mississippi writer.

The half-completed project utilizes a computer program to process Faulkner's text, word by word. Using original manuscripts as references, Polk's duties as a textual editor include returning parts of many published Faulkner works to their original form.

"Faulkner generally was badly edited," Polk said. "Editors often changed or rewrote his work because they didn't understand what he wanted to do. They tried to make it (Faulkner's writing) sound normal."

Youth dance to benefit Babe Ruth boys league

A benefit dance for the Babe Ruth boys league is scheduled Friday at Veterans of Foreign Wars annex building on Third Street in Bay St. Louis.

Music will be provided by disc jockeys from WQID radio station in Biloxi. Albums, t-shirts, bumper stickers will be given away.

There will be a $3 admission charge.

For information contact Neil Favre, 467-1497 or Frank Pernicliaro, 467-5626.

Pet Corner

"I think there's something incredible that happens between a dog and its owner and I can't imagine a day without them," says actress Sally Struthers, about her Chinese Chow, Chester. Chester is being entered in the 1986 Purina Dog Chow Search for the Great American Dog, which began July 15.

This is the fourth annual national Search for the Great American Dog, and the theme this year is "One of the Family." Owners who enter their dogs will submit an essay of 50 words or less from the dog's point of view, entitled, "I know I'm one of the family because..." This all came about because 99 percent of the respondents who answered a recent survey said their pooch is "a part of the family." The contest gives the opportunity to tell the story of that special relationship through the dog's eyes.

Essays should be submitted by Aug. 15, with a photo of the dog with the owner or family member, and the entry form found inside bags of Purina Dog Chow. Five hundred semifinalists (ten from each state) will be chosen in September. Five regional finalists will be announced in November and the grand prize winner will be determined by a special vote of the general public.

A $25,000 cash grand prize goes to the winning dog, whose photo and the owner's will appear on packages of Purina Dog Chow, of which they will receive one-year's supply. They will also be flown to N.Y.C. to ride on the Purina Dog Chow Great American Dog float in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

Entry details can be found in packages of Purina Dog Chow or by writing for the Great American Dog, PMSI Station, P.O. Box 396, Dept. LL, Newton, CT 06470-0396, © 1986, McNaught Synd.

Narcotics News

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q. Is this new form of cocaine called "crack" much of a problem in Mississippi?

(M.S., Ridgeland)
A. Yes. "Crack," also known as "rock cocaine," is being seen in a lot of our cocaine seizures. Since February of this year, the bureau's statistics reflect 28 cases where "crack" was involved and two of those involved the seizure of "rock houses."

"Rock houses" are establishments set up for the sole purpose of selling and manufacturing of "crack."

"Crack" has become a national epidemic. Tons of articles are being published by Time magazine and Newsweek concerning the newest, purest, and most addictive drug on the market. It is the number one drug problem in the larger cities throughout the United States. It is only a matter of time before it becomes the number one problem of our state.

If you would like to ask a question, address it to: Mississippi Bureau of Narcotics, P.O. Box 6482, Jackson, MS 39212.

NSTL to host Astro Camp

NSTL - Astro Camp, a new education program for young people, will be held Aug. 4-8 at the NASA National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County.

The camp is designed for 10- to 12-year olds who have an interest in aerospace. All activities will emphasize the important applications of mathematics and science to aerospace technology.

Chief instructors of Astro Camp will be Dr. Jerry Brown, NSTL's chief educational programs officer, and Professor Jim McMurray, NSTL's aerospace education specialist.

The camp agenda includes a computer class, simulated Space Shuttle mission, model rocket class and sessions on astronomy and navigation.

The space fitness and nutrition class on opening day begins with a basic physical examination performed by the NSTL medical director.

Students will be briefed on rocket engine testing at NSTL and will be given a tour of the Space Shuttle Main Engine test complex.

A field trip to NASA's Michoud

Assembly Facility in eastern New Orleans is also planned. Astro Camp participants will tour the facility where the shuttle external fuel tanks are manufactured. Also at Michoud they will view a large-scale mockup of a Space Station module.

Astro-Camp enrollment is limited to the first 30 applicants. A $100 fee, payable to Pan Am World Services, covers all meals and equipment for the week. The 30 participants will also receive a Space Kit which includes identification cards, a calculator, T-shirt, hat and Astro Camp logbook.

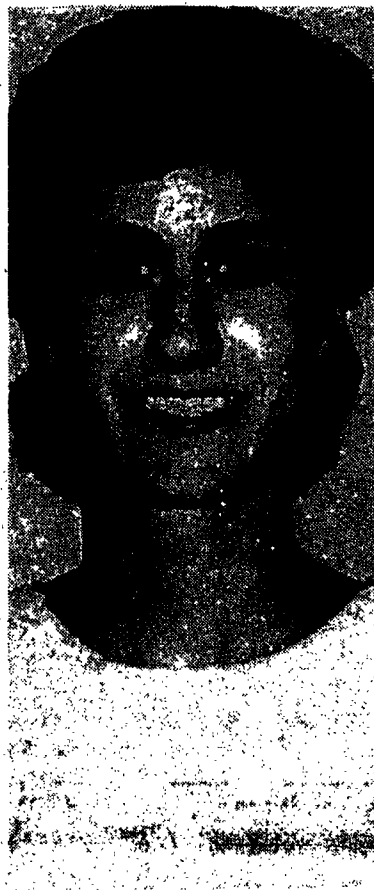

Parents will be required to bring students to NSTL each day at 9 a.m. and pick them up at 4 p.m.

To enroll a child, send a letter with his or her name, address, telephone number and parent's work telephone number, along with a check payable to Pan Am World Services, to Astro Camp Program, Code AB-10, National Space Technology Laboratories, NSTL, MS 39529. Parents will be notified by phone of their child's acceptance.

CEHS students take honors at foreign language fair

The German classes of Coast Episcopal High School attended the "Talk to the World" 1986 Mississippi Foreign Language Fair at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The students were accompanied by Mrs. Karola Williams, German teacher.

Helen Allen, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Avery Crouse of Long Beach, won first place for Recitation of a Literary Passage Level III German.

In Translation Level III German, Margaret Murdock, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Murdock of Gulfport, won first place. Third place was won by Sharon Orlin, daughter of Mrs. Joan Orlin of Waveland, in the same category.

For Extemporaneous Prose Reading Level II, third place winner was Tori Cazier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Cazier of Gulfport, and for Level III Honorable Mention went to Henry Furr, son of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Furr of Ocean Springs.

Members of German I, II and III classes received a second place for a German skit based on the story "Little Red Riding Hood."

Students performing in the skit were: Helen Allen, Henry Furr, Margaret Murdock, Tori Cazier, Sharon Orlin, Demetria Short, Lisa Twedt, Chris Arleth, Kevin Albrecht, Jon McDougal and Alex Lindsey.

'Hyperactivity' serious childhood illness

"Hyperactivity" is a more serious childhood disorder than many specially parents—realize, that can lead to a wide range of problems in all areas of a child's life, according to Biloxi Beach, Robert L. Williams. Williams specializes in many symptoms that it becomes a syndrome." And Dr. Williams noted that it has been within the last decade that hyperactivity has been recognized as the serious problem that it is, although there is not yet widespread understanding of the disorder.

dealing with the problem," he said. "They may have been told that the child should be evaluated for hyperactivity, and did not follow through. And only when the child is facing the consequences of the hyperactivity such as being expelled from school, do the parents respond."

Dr. Williams said that frequently parents do not want to admit that their child is hyperactive. "A lot of people don't want to face the reality that their child has a problem. They may say, 'He's just all boy.' But it is not normal for all boys to be failing school and in continual conflict with their families."

This reaction is better understood when it is pointed out that hyperactivity is very heavily weighted for boys. Some studies suggest there are approximately 10 boys to every one girl with hyperactivity, according to Dr. Williams.

Play is the third area of a child's life in which hyperactivity is felt. "In play, the hyperactive child is often aggressive, impulsive and uses poor judgement. He may even fail nursery school due to his aggressiveness," Dr. Williams said.

"He constantly demands attention, and his parents are afraid to let him out of their sight, they have no piece and quiet. But if the child is having trouble at play, school and home—the only place he can turn for support is to his own family."

Dr. Williams recommends positive action for the family who suspects their child may be suffering from attention deficit disorder with hyperactivity. "Naturally, the sooner a parent seeks help, the better it is for everyone involved—especially the child."

There are two major "goals of childhood" states Dr. Williams—to learn academically, to go to school; and to learn socialization. "Children have to have these skills to be successful adults."

"If they do not acquire these skills, they are uneducated and frequently have problems with social relationships. Fifty percent of hyperactive kids will continue to have symptoms of ADD in adulthood," stated Dr. Williams. "Although the child may in effect 'outgrow' hyperactivity, he may then have residual psychological problems which he will carry with him throughout his life. We frequently see this in the conduct disorders manifested in the adolescents."

The first step in treatment is a diagnostic evaluation by a healthcare practitioner familiar with ADD. "We make the diagnosis by evaluating the school and the family. If (the child) meets the criteria for diagnosis, we try to help in dealing with the symptoms," Dr. Williams said.

Some of the steps which may be taken in the school environment include making sure that the teacher understands ADD and how it affects classroom behavior, and specific recommendations will be made to help the teacher deal with the problem, Dr. Williams said. "For example, we may suggest placing the child near the teacher's desk which deals with the short attention span. When she sees him doodling or looking off, she can redirect his attention and get him back to work."

"We may recommend placing the child's desk facing a plain wall away from the class, bookshelves and windows to deal with distractibility," he said.

"We will also work with the parents to arrange for work completion. And in the home, the first step is again education. The parents must understand that the child is not out to get them, he would like to stop the inappropriate behavior as much as they would like him to stop."

Although much is published about hyperactivity and diet, detailed research indicates diet affects only about 1-2 percent of hyperactive children, Dr. Williams said. "I tell parents to try it, cut down on sugars to try the special diets. If it works, keep it up. If it doesn't work, then seek further help."

ADD is a "physical disease, a neurological disorder, in most cases," Dr. Williams stresses. "And therefore proper use of medication may be an additional part of the treatment program in some individuals."

"There is a misconception about the medication, much is heard in a negative sense about the medication. This is the result of kids who have been overmedicated, made into 'zombies.' This is not the fault of the medication."

"The side effects and adverse reactions are minimal. There is no indication that the risk is greater than for other routine medications—parents give their kids," he said.

Ritalin is the most common medication used for ADD, according to Dr. Williams. "It is not mind control, it is not used to make kids easier for parents to control—it is used for the child's benefit. It lengthens attention span, lessens distractibility and improves impulse control."

"Therefore, it helps children accomplish the two major goals of childhood," education and socialization, stated Dr. Williams.

There are no clear statistics as to the success of treatment for children with ADD, said Dr. Williams. "I do know that the prognosis is very bad without help. We know they do better with help," he said.

"There are not a lot of long-term studies to evaluate the treatment for ADD and its outcome, because the move to help is relatively 'young.' In my personal experience, I know that short term, especially when you add medication to the complete approach, often there is a very dramatic improvement."

Symptoms of ADD begin manifesting themselves as early as 3-4 years of age and can be felt through adulthood. Treatment is available for symptoms ranging from mild to severe and from early childhood through adulthood. So while it is never too early to get help, it is never too late either, according to Dr. Williams.

mental and developmental issues as well as general behavior problems.

The medical term for hyperactivity is attention deficit disorder with hyperactivity," explained Dr. Williams, and it is a syndrome which consists of a collection of symptoms that form a reliable pattern.

The symptoms fall within the categories of short attention span, distractibility, impulsiveness and an excess of physical activity. And although Dr. Williams stresses that there is no "typical" hyperactive child as each are individuals, there are common complaints voiced by teachers regarding classroom behavior.

"The major complaints that a teacher would have (regarding a child who is hyperactive) is he seems a lot, he fails to complete his daily work assignments, his failure to take his homework home—and if he does take it home, he fails to bring it back to school! He's restless and fidgety, talks excessively, disturbs the class, and may act as the class clown. He also has difficulty learning and following class rules."

"At school, an ADD child (one with attention deficit disorder with hyperactivity) is frequently labeled lazy, bored, he could do better if..., he needs to try harder, immature, or not ready to go on."

"They often fail kindergarten or first grade despite the fact they are doing the best they can and try very hard," said Dr. Williams.

"This is not a 'typical' child. This is a child with continual day-to-day problems affecting performance in class, one with a lot of D's and F's. The hyperactive child is the child in the school system who in the early grades has his name written on the blackboard every day, and in high school is suspended or frequently in detention," said Dr. Williams.

Although many of the symptoms apply to any child at one time or another, the distinction is in the degree of application, explains Dr. Williams.

"No single symptom defines a hyperactive child," according to Dr. Williams. "It's just there are so

"We've identified and worked with hyperactive kids for decades, but only in the last 10 years or so have we begun to understand the significance of the problem," he said.

Hyperactivity takes on major proportions when it is realized just how severely a child is affected by its symptoms, Dr. Williams pointed out. "Kids have three areas to their lives: they go to school, they play, and they have a home they live in."

"Hyperactive children usually dysfunction in all three areas. They can have problems 24 hours a day, 365 days a year in one area or another," he said, continuing. "The eventual cost most of these kids pay is very low self esteem."

"These children are continually frustrated with society. The importance of that continual frustration is evident when the impact on society is considered," said Dr. Williams. "Some studies estimate that 30-40 percent of juvenile delinquents have attention deficit disorder with hyperactivity."

And the significance of that statistic escalates when it is realized that it is estimated that only 3 to 4 percent of all school-age children are hyperactive.

"It is a very, very serious problem. Few realize how significant it is except the parent of the child; these parents often live a very lonesome and isolated life. Their child has alienated their friends, they can't go out in public because of the child's behavior, there may be neighbors who won't allow their children to play with the hyperactive child. I've (worked with) kids who weren't allowed to visit inside the homes of families in their neighborhood."

"Many times parents are also under pressure from relatives or suffering from guilt, thinking it's their fault, they should make the child behave or be stricter and discipline the child more," Dr. Williams explained. "The parents may be on a tremendous guilt trip, especially the mother, who feels she has done something wrong."

"Unfortunately, many parents who have been told their child is hyperactive have been ineffective in

Stop Smoking — Stay Trim

Smokers don't have to put on pounds when they drop the cigarette habit, according to the American Lung Association—the Christmas Seal People®. Although quitting smoking can trigger metabolic changes that cause weight gain, chances are good you can lose the added few pounds in three to six months. The key to getting off the merry-go-round of quitting smoking, gaining weight, and going back to smoking is to accept the weight gain as only temporary and make not-smoking your number-one priority.

Staying-trim techniques are basic and sensible: eat (slowly) three nutritious meals a day, watch your calories, avoid sweets, and be sure to exercise regularly.

For more information on how to stop smoking and stay trim, contact your local Lung Association.

Nobody does it like you do!

Nobody creates the same rich flavor that your family loves. You can taste it in your special red beans recipe of seasoned meats, herbs and spices.

All across the city, ask any family—no two red beans dishes taste alike because the ingredients differ in every household. And that's what makes your cooking unique. And that's what makes our city unique.

Treat your family to red beans at our special low price this week. And while you're shopping for red beans, rice and sausage, stock up on all your other ingredients also. You'll find all the right items, at all the right prices.

Pentacostals sponsoring Thompson event

The Dove Nest and Truth & Freedom Pentacostal Ministries, under the direction of Dennis Lynch and June Kirkwood, respectively, are sponsoring a fund raising spaghetti dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Thompson.

The event, including a gospel sing, is slated for Saturday, July 26, from noon to 9:30 p.m. at the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue. Special music will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Donation is $3.50 for adults, $1.50 for children.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, members of Waveland First Baptist Church, must relocate to California for health reasons.

For information call Sidney Negosia, 467-0571; or Kirkwood at 467-4390.

An earlier report on the event erroneously listed the Waveland First Baptist Church as sponsor.

Whitfield treats cocaine abusers

Although the severe dangers associated with cocaine use are becoming more prevalent to the public, Mississippi State Hospital's alcohol and drug treatment center continues to show an increase in patients seeking treatment from the seductive drug.

MSH Alcohol Treatment Center Director Dr. James Service said 30 to 40 percent of the patients who seek treatment at the facility have used cocaine. The center accommodates 40 patients who undergo a treatment period of approximately 35 days because of drug or alcohol abuse.

"Twenty percent of those patients are heavily addicted to cocaine," Service said, "which is compared to two to five percent less than four years ago."

Statistics indicate that Mississippi is catching up with more urban areas of the country where cocaine has been a problem for some time, Service said.

The reason, he said, is because the drug is more readily available making it more affordable.

"It is crossing all social barriers so you no longer have to be rich to use it," he said.

However, the drug is extremely addictive which could cost the average user a habit of $200 to $300 per week, he said.

Because the craving for the drug is so great, Service said 90 percent of people who use cocaine must seek professional help to quit.

"We get at least two calls per week on the average," he said, "but that is still behind the number of inquiries we have on alcohol and narcotics."

Service said cocaine addiction is intensified by the short period of time "the sense of euphoria or high" lasts, which is usually less than an hour.

When the drug wears off, it causes the person to acquire cravings for additional use, he said.

"Cocaine causes a depletion of certain brain chemicals that keep a person from getting depressed," Service said. "Therefore, when the persons begin to come down, he gets very depressed and feels the need for more cocaine."

The addiction, he said, can be physical as well as psychological. "Although the person experiences no physical withdrawals, he still feels a psychological need."

"Addiction is a compulsion," Service said, "when you feel you have to do something even in the face of negative consequences."

Some individuals may become more easily addicted than others, he said, depending on their physical or psychological makeup.

The symptoms associated with cocaine use, Service said, may include exhaustion, tremors, depression, malnutrition, loss of sexual interest, inability to concentrate, and interference with work or family.

These problems may lead to suicide in extreme cases, and at least 50 percent of cocaine addicts have thought about suicide, he said. "Cocaine is a dangerous drug," Service said. "Usage may cause respiratory failure, allergic reactions, strokes and heart attacks which can all be fatal."

"It is also unpredictable," he said. "Some people react differently to its use. It can cause the heart to react irregularly. Some people have sensitive hearts and may die on a dose of cocaine where the same dose may not hurt another person."

Death from cocaine may also claim a person in perfect health such as basketball star Len Bias or football star Don Rogers, he said.

Reactions may also depend on the degree of purity of the drug ranging from 20 percent to 90 percent, he said.

However, Service said the obvious dangers surrounding the use of cocaine will not frighten an addict from taking the drug. "But it may stop a person who is thinking about trying it," he said.

Cocaine, which is usually sold illegally in the form of hydrochloride salt, is soluble in water and convenient for injection, smoking or snorting through the nose.

Although Service said there is no safe way of taking cocaine, the least dangerous method is snorting although it may eventually have an effect on the nasal passages.

"The most dangerous method is free basing," he said, which is smoked in a glass pipe after it is reduced to its free base by the addition of baking soda or alkaline substances.

"Smoking crack is also dangerous," he said, which is produced by mixing the drug with baking soda and water to form smokable "crack rocks."

"When you smoke it, you get a higher concentration that reaches the brain quickly," Service said. The depressed state afterward is also more intense, he said.

The method of treatment at the MSH facility, Service said, is like most other chemical dependency units, "through group therapy or individual counseling."

However, a person must have the desire to quit, he said.
